HINT ST. LOUIS PLAYER EXPOSED BASEBALL SCANDAL

Commissioner Landis and League President Heydler Commend Man Who Told of Douglas' Offer.

INFORMANT'S IDENTITY IS KEPT A SECRET

Pitcher, Who Offered to Desert "Giants," Departs for Home, Declaring He Will Take His Medicine.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 17.—Speculation as to the player who turned up "Shufflin' Phil" Douglas, the New York Giants' star pitcher who yesterday was placed on the "permanent ineligible list" of the club and therefore barred from organized baseball, continued here today.

The player, by President John A. Heydler of the National League and Commissioner Landis, baseball commissioner, who grilled Douglas here yesterday and obtained a virtual confession from him, was said to belong to a contending team. Barney Dreyfus, manager of the Pirates, has declared his belief that he was not a Pittsburgh player. Before departing for Chicago last night, Commissioner Landis virtually admitted that the player was not a Cub. If these two clubs are eliminated the situation puts it up to St. Louis.

Reason for secrecy was not disclosed by Judge Landis or President Heydler, both of whom commended Douglas' correspondent highly for disclosing the plans of Shufflin' Phil to desert his team if the contending club would come across with a sufficient amount of money.

Amazing Stupidity.

The baseball world here is amazed at the crass stupidity of Douglas' expedient to obtain money, when he put his neck in the noose to the extent of exposing his thoughts in writing. Probably the mystery of the correspondent's identity will not be disclosed.

In the meantime Douglas departed last night after what was probably the unhappiest day in his erratic career. He declared at the station he had nothing to say "here or hereafter" and would take his medicine. No satisfactory explanation has been given of his single-handed effort to sell himself and his club.

Loss Will Hurt Team.

The Giants are going forward as best they can without the services of this really great pitcher. Douglas had won 15 and lost four games this year and was next to Coughlin of Cincinnati, the leading hurler in the National League, in percentage. His loss will greatly embarrass the Giants at a time when Pittsburgh is coming strong and the Cardinals are rebuilding for the final drive through the stretch.

Douglas was exposed here yesterday when the head of the league and high baseball commissioner called him in for a conference. After a long cross-examination, the announcement was made that Douglas had been barred. The letter to the unknown correspondent was the principal evidence. Douglas could not deny his own handwriting.

In the language of the great New York club "had the goods on Douglas," said Judge Landis. "I applaud the decision of Mr. McGraw. The thing might have been looked up till after the pennant race was over, but the New York manager would not keep Douglas after he was sure of his evidence. His team may be hurt by the absence of Douglas for the rest of the season, but for the good of baseball, men who offer to sell themselves should be kept out."

"When I questioned Douglas, he admitted that the New York club had always treated him fairly and could give no reason why he had offered to desert his team for money except that he knew he was in 'bad' with McGraw for a recent escapade and wanted to be sure of money if his salary stopped."

Player's Name a Secret.

"We caught Douglas in a flat offer to a player of another club—a contending club—to desert the Giants if given a certain sum of money," said John McGraw. "We have a letter written by Douglas in which he said he would 'go away home across.' I'm not going to tell the name of the player Douglas wrote to, or the club, for they are innocent."

By means of telephone calls we confirmed suspicions a day or so ago and acted at once. Douglas told us he wished to act as go-between. You know the Giants will win if I

RICKEY IS SILENT AS TO IDENTITY OF THE PLAYER WHO EXPOSED DOUGLAS

MANAGER BRANCH RICK-
EY of the Cardinals was still noncommittal today, when asked if the player—correspondent who turned up "Shufflin' Phil" Douglas was a member of the Cardinals.

Rickey was told that Barney Dreyfus had denied the player was a "Pirate" and that Judge Landis had said the player was not a "Cub."

"It looks like it will be a wonderful day, but a trifle warm," was Rickey's reply.

Further questions resulted in the frank statement by Rickey that he would not answer any questions either affirmatively or negatively, along this line.

ENVER PASHA DEAD ON BATTLEFIELD, MOSCOW IS TOLD

Former Turkish War Minister and Antagonist to Bolshevik Rule Was in British Uniform.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—Enver Pasha, former Turkish Minister of War and recently chief antagonist to Bolshevik rule in the Transcaucasus, was found dead on the battlefield in Eastern Bokhara, according to advices received by the Government here today.

Enver Pasha was attired in a British uniform when found. He was stabbed five times on Aug. 4 in fighting against the Bolsheviks.

Enver Pasha was one of the most romantic and adventurous figures in Islam. He began his career as an agitator amongst the young Turks and was one of the triumvirate which made a successful coup d'etat and deposed Sultan Abdul Hamid.

Blamed by British.

He became Chief of Staff of the Turkish army in January, 1913. In a British Government white paper he was blamed for Turkey's entrance into the war on the side of Germany. He held several conferences during the war with the German High Commission and with Emperor William himself. He had unbounded confidence in the impregnability of the Dardanelles.

In 1917 he became Minister of War. After peace was concluded he was forced to flee Turkey, where he was accused of profiting and kindred activities.

Turns to Lenin.

He then was reported to have engaged in a conspiracy with the Bolsheviks to facilitate their invasion of Egypt, India and Afghanistan. He made frequent trips to Moscow and was often found in conference with Premier Lenin. Through his offices, a treaty of peace was signed between the Government of Bokhara and the Soviets.

At the beginning of this year he was accused by the Soviets of betraying them. A like charge was made against him by the Turks and both sought his arrest, but he always managed to elude his pursuers. He has carried on a campaign in recent months against the Bolsheviks. His last effort was an attempt to become the Emir of Turkestan.

BRAKEMAN IS KILLED IN MONTANA BY GUARD

Rail Worker's Wife Killed at Home—Argument Fatal to One—Others Hurt in Attacks.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Disorders reported in connection with the railway shopmen's strike include the following incidents:

Bombs were thrown yesterday at a Santa Fe train that left San Bernardino, Cal., for the first time in six days. The first bomb exploded in the railroad yards and two more were hurled at the passenger train as the engine wheels spun over oil rails in pulling out of the city.

Several persons were injured by rocks thrown when a crowd of strike sympathizers attempted to prevent yesterday's shift from leaving the Santa Fe shops. Four persons were arrested. Crowds gathered several times on the streets of the town, but dispersed at the behest of officers.

A mass meeting of members of the public and railroad unions was called to meet in Fresno, Cal., last night with the object of urging Congress to make impossible such provocations of normal life as have resulted from the present strikes.

Worker's Wife Killed.
George Stambaugh, a brakeman on the Great Northern, was shot and killed at Havre, Mont., by a railroad guard.

William Craft, a blacksmith's helper, employed by the Denver & Rio Grande since the shopmen's strike, suffered a broken leg and other injuries when he was attacked on the streets of Pueblo, Colo.

Mrs. Nels Hansen, wife of a Santa Fe shop foreman at San Bernardino, Cal., was shot and killed in her home last night. Police took up the trail of a man who is said to have attacked her.

James Lewis, a striking Pennsylvanian Railroad machinist, was shot to death by Charles Parsons, a wealthy real estate man, following a dispute over the strike at Cape Charles, Va. Lewis accused Parsons of "listening over the shoulders" of strikers when they gathered to discuss the strike.

Troops remain on guard in virtually all places where soldiers were sent to quell riots earlier in the strike. These included five towns in Kansas—Parsons, Newton, Herington, Herington and Horton, and three in Illinois—Bloomington, Clinton, and Joliet.

Several Men Injured.
Local authorities asked for troops at Spencer, N. C., where shop workers were routed by strike sympathizers.

May: Stiles in command of troops at Clinton, Ill., recommended martial law, following new disturbances in which several men were injured. Outbreaks are reported from Cedar Rapids, Ia., Superior and Joplin, Mo., Birmingham, Mobile and Albany, Ala., and Scranton, Pa.

An attempt was made to blow up the tracks of the Louisville & Nashville at Birmingham, and a plot to wreck a train on the same road at Mobile was discovered, while the home of an L. & N. employee was attacked with bullets and bombs.

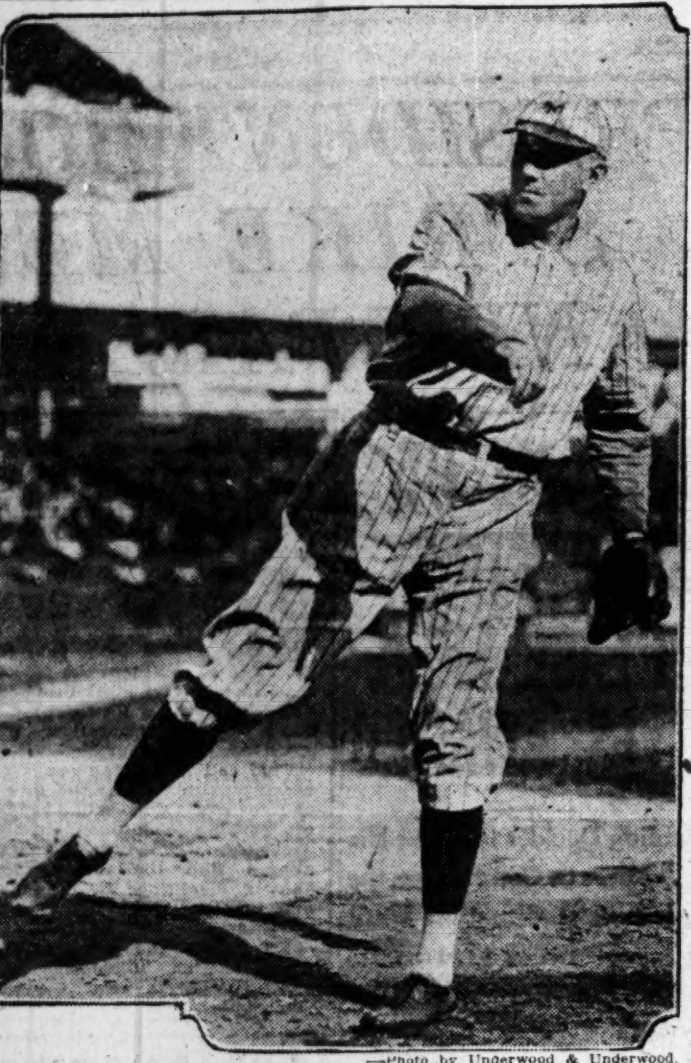

Traffic on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific was blocked at El Reno, Ok., where a railroad bridge was burned. Farmers reported that two men were seen to fire the bridge.

Striking miners forced the crew of a Mobile & Ohio train to side track five cars of coal at Wilkesville, Ill., the coal had been in storage and was assigned to East St. Louis.

HETTY GREEN'S SON BECOMES A REAL RADIO SAMARITAN

The Colonel Has Farmside Touring Truck, Apparatus in Home and Long-Distance Amplifier.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 17.—Round Hills is the country home of Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green. His owner has been bitten by the radio bug.

In the sunroom, stock quotations, weather reports, music and speeches flow all day from the receiving station there. In the boathouse come the booming tones of the amplifier with which Col. Green expects to entertain the crowds at the coming boat races. And touring the countryside is the Colonel's radio truck with its receiving apparatus.

Within a few days his new six-room studio, housing a complete broadcasting station, will be finished. Col. Green is not enjoying his radio pleasure alone. The first tryout of his truck was made last Thursday and it went rolling about the neighborhood, reeling off concerts and talk from Newark and Schenectady for the delighted farmers.

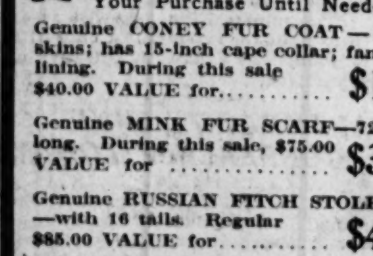

The amplifier is the Colonel's pet. This is just such a machine as was used to make President Harding's inaugural address audible to thousands gathered about the Capitol. At Round Hills the sound will be plainly heard over a radius of several miles.

"Anybody who has a set of two good ears has all the required receiving apparatus," the Colonel says. "I'm so interested in this thing that I haven't time for anything else. I'm like a child with a new toy, who can't be induced to put it down."

pitch out the season and you know they'll lose if I don't." He repeated his written offer to desert us, to stay away for good, if he got the money he demanded.

McGraw implied he had suspected Douglas for some time. In fact even before the latest outbreak of the "Shufflin' Phil" one. Douglas pitched his last game for the Giants on Sunday, July 31, at the Polo Grounds, against the Pittsburgh team and was beaten, 7 to 0. He disappeared a day or two later, as he had done several times in previous seasons and didn't show up for several days.

Douglas was born in Rome, Ga., June 17, 1890. The fact-finding commission provided for in the Cleveland agreement would not meet this emergency, he said, because either miners or operators could reject all proposals of the result of a shortage caused by the miners' walkout. Belief has been expressed in some quarters that the President would include such a request or suggestion in his message to Congress on the industrial situation, but no information had come from the White House today as to the President's disposition in the matter.

The President is expected to recommend, at least suggest, in his address to Congress, according to those who talked with the executive yesterday, legislation giving legal status to the present Fuel Control Committee.

The Federal Distribution Committee was asked today whether grain elevators should be classed as public utilities and thereby given priority in coal supplies. Representations have been made, the committee said, that the operation of large elevators in Kansas City, Omaha, Wichita and other Middle-Western cities was a matter of considerable urgency at this time when grain shipments are at the peak. The committee was said to hold that the needs of elevators come within the jurisdiction of the various state fuel administrations.

Information to support charges of bituminous coal profiteering was sent yesterday to Secretary Hoover by Chairman Borah of the Senate Labor Committee, who asked the Cabinet officers for suggestions as to immediate means to prevent charging of excessive prices.

PRICE CONTROL IS GOVERNMENT'S NEW COAL PROBLEM

Federal Fuel Distributor
Faces Possibility of Breakdown in Present Plan With New Mines Opening.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Settlement in part of the bituminous strike and prospects of an agreement to end the suspension of work in the anthracite fields, has brought the Government face to face with a new problem—the matter of controlling the prices of the augmented coal supply.

The Government has used car supply as a weapon to enforce the price agreements to which the producing operators subscribed at the behest of Secretary Hoover but with new mines opening daily the Federal fuel distributor has been confronted with the possibility of a breakdown in the control exercised over prices.

The central committee adopted several measures today to check profiteering. It was decided that on orders placed by the Federal distribution organization through a wholesaler or a selling agency only one commission, not to exceed 8 per cent of the value of the transaction, could be charged. Violation of this regulation, it was said, will be reported to the Governors of the various States for action. Loadings of coal Tuesday totaled 12,917 cars.

Whether the present voluntary system can be extended to the mines now being opened is a question being given serious consideration by officials.

Legislation is advised.
Some of President Harding's advisers, notably Secretary Hoover, are known to feel that Congress should be asked to enact some sort of price control legislation to prevent skyrocketing of coal prices as the result of a shortage caused by the miners' walkout. Belief has been expressed in some quarters that the President would include such a request or suggestion in his message to Congress on the industrial situation, but no information had come from the White House today as to the President's disposition in the matter.

The President is expected to recommend, at least suggest, in his address to Congress, according to those who talked with the executive yesterday, legislation giving legal status to the present Fuel Control Committee.

The Federal Distribution Committee was asked today whether grain elevators should be classed as public utilities and thereby given priority in coal supplies. Representations have been made, the committee said, that the operation of large elevators in Kansas City, Omaha, Wichita and other Middle-Western cities was a matter of considerable urgency at this time when grain shipments are at the peak. The committee was said to hold that the needs of elevators come within the jurisdiction of the various state fuel administrations.

Information to support charges of bituminous coal profiteering was sent yesterday to Secretary Hoover by Chairman Borah of the Senate Labor Committee, who asked the Cabinet officers for suggestions as to immediate means to prevent charging of excessive prices.

AMERICANS MEET COLLINS IN BEHALF OF IRISH PEACE

Efforts May Be Made to Bring Leader of Republican
Army and De Valera
Together for Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.
DUBLIN, Aug. 17.—Irregulars forcibly removed the crew from a train five miles from Tralee today and sent the train crashing full speed into the Tralee station. The train was wrecked and the station badly damaged. Only the presence of mind of a signalman, who diverted the runaway into a siding, prevented loss of life.

Commandant Edward O'Brien of the National forces was shot dead at Waterford last night, when helping to extinguish a fire in the police barracks.

The troops of the provisional Free State government are continuing their successes against the irregulars. Latest reports tell of the capture of Mallow and Mitchelstown. A report reached Dublin early today that National army troops had recaptured Dundalk from the Republican insurgents, who occupied it a few days ago. The report has not yet been officially confirmed.

The town of Clifden, on the Irish coast 43 miles northwest of Galway, has been freed of Irish irregulars, and the Marconi wireless station there has been captured by National army forces. The station will be put into operation again within a few days.

Several Americans who arrived here recently from the United States are holding counsel with Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, and others, endeavoring to emphasize the necessity of restoring peace in Ireland as soon as possible. It is reported that efforts may be made to bring Collins and Eamon de Valera together on a basis which De Valera would be required to organize a Republican party in Parliament and active by constitutional means, if such be possible, to bring about a republic eventually.

It is now definitely established to the satisfaction of officials here that Valera is making his headquarters at Clonmel. He is often seen moving about town in an automobile. He is in uniform, but tries to conceal his identity by putting his cap down over his eyes.

Some representative Irishmen express the opinion that there now will come a "real military engagement" to settle the civil war issue once and for all, with no temporary measure. One of them said today: "Now look out for the real scrap."

Greener Harbor Mined by Irregulars.
By the Associated Press.
BELFAST, Aug. 17.—Greener, a mail port in County Louth, has been occupied by irregulars who have mined the harbor in expectation of the arrival of National forces. Ordinary passenger service on the railroad is running as usual.

Seven Nationals, who escaped from Dundalk after the irregulars occupied it, were arrested yesterday under the curfew regulations.

Advises from Greener, in North-western County Louth, are to the effect that the Republicans have occupied Carrington, nearby. Carrington is the favorite summer resort of Cardinal Logue, primate of all Ireland. The Cardinal left before the attack.

WOMAN REPUBLICAN NOMINATED TO BE U. S. APPRAISER IN ST. LOUIS

MISS SOPHIE MCCORD.

Miss Sophie McCord of 4232 Maryland avenue, whose nomination to be United States Merchant Appraiser in St. Louis was sent to the Senate yesterday by President Harding, has been active in Republican politics here for a number of years. She is chief clerk at the St. Louis Infirmary and is a member of the Indorsement and Investigations Committee of the Republican Women's Club of St. Louis. She was chief clerk of the local draft board, Twenty-third Division, during the war.

The office of United States Appraiser here has supervision over all imports consigned to St. Louis and has general charge of the Government import offices in Kansas City and St. Joseph. The office fixes the duty on all imports within the convention and there are some members of the committee who take the position that the proceedings would be less liable to interruption from outside influences if the convention was considerably farther removed from Kansas City.

Yancey, although an anti-Reed man, is favorably inclined to Excelsior Springs, that being in the county in which he resides, which makes it difficult for him to refuse his aid to the home county men who are here asking the committee to send the convention there.

Springfield wants the convention but it does not appear probable that it will be taken to Southern Missouri.

The committee meeting will be largely a proxy affair. There were more than half a dozen of the 32 members in Jefferson City at noon and there was only one train to arrive before the hour set for the meeting.

Ten Suits to Block $1 Tax
80 Taxpayers in Kirkwood Back of Injunction Petition.

Ten suits to enjoin the St. Louis County Court, clerk and collector from collecting a $1 tax for Kirkwood school repairs and furnishings, were filed by about 80 taxpayers of the district yesterday in the Circuit Court at Clayton.

The tax was increased to $1 from 60 cents by a taxpayers' vote last April 4, when a proposition carried by a majority of 55. It is alleged in these suits that the funds to be raised are really for building purposes, for which State laws provide that an increase can be made only in a two-thirds vote of the taxpayers. It is asked that the tax be declared illegal, and that in cases where it has been entered on the books it be removed, as a cloud to title. One such suit has been won by D. C. Taylor, a Kirkwood attorney.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—J. S. Couden of Baltimore, president of the Couden Oil Co., and owner of the largest stables of race horses in the country, underwent an operation at the Saratoga Hospital here yesterday, following an acute attack of appendicitis. He rallied last night and it was announced by hospital authorities that his condition was "fairly good."

COTTON BELT WORKERS REJECT SEPARATE PACT

Declare They Won't Enter Into Agreement Not Involving Fel- lows on Other Railroads.

General chairman representing the striking shop craftsmen of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co., yesterday declined to make a separate agreement with the Cotton Belt, after officers of the road had offered to return all striking employees with seniority rights unimpaired, in accordance with President Harding's proposal of Aug. 1 to end the strike. The road has made no effort to replace its striking employees.

The spokesmen of the shopmen declared they would not enter into a settlement not involving their fellow craftsmen on other railroads. The President's plan of Aug. 1 called for railroads and employees to recognize the validity of the Labor Board's decision, withdrawal of all lawsuits growing out of the strike, and return of the strikers with full seniority rights. The Federated Shop Crafts approved the plan, but the seniority question proved a stumbling block with the majority of the railroads.

Contempt Charge Against Printer in Strike Case Dismissed.

A charge of contempt of court filed against James T. Cunningham, owner of a printing establishment at Mattoon, Ill., because he printed stickers containing a definition of a "scab," was dismissed in the Federal court at East St. Louis yesterday when Cunningham produced his order book and proved by witnesses that the stickers were printed before the restraining order was granted to the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co., prohibiting interference with or intimidation of employees of the railroad company. Judge English said the printing and circulating of such matter was a clear violation of the injunction, but inasmuch as the printing was executed before the restraining order was granted, there was no occasion to hold Cunningham guilty.

MRS. SARENA GILLILAND IS FREED OF LARCENY CHARGE

East St. Louis Woman Dismissed Be- cause of a Lack of Evidence in Case.

Mrs. Sarena Gilliland, 21 years old, living in East St. Louis, jointly charged with her husband, Thomas, with larceny from a dwelling, was discharged yesterday at a preliminary hearing in the Court of Criminal Correction by Judge Hochdoerfer because of insufficient evidence. Mrs. Gilliland and her husband had been charged with taking liquors and wines valued at $772 from the home of Charles H. Krause, 4454 Forest Park boulevard, on April 16, 1921. They had been employed at the Krause home. Mrs. Gilliland, who was arrested in East St. Louis in July, testified yesterday that she left the Krause home following a quarrel with her husband and that she had no knowledge of the liquor. A warrant is pending against Gilliland.

I First Compounded This Remedy for My Own Neighbors

Their praise of this newer form of iron has spread so rapidly that now, after nine years, over 4,000,000 people use it annually.

Nine years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always complaining and suffering, without ever seeming to get better. Fully worn-out men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and their children were full of nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizzy spells. Still another was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, fainting spells before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four, and nearly 100% of iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all debilitating weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to eat the nourishment of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys have all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your troubles is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took food that was rich in iron, but their claims "I not absorbed at all. In compounding Nuxated Iron I use the newest form of iron, which is the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. In this old form of iron, it will not injure the delicate and tender stomach, and is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. People whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Now take two 6-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were all of the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance by taking this newer form of iron.

DANIELS TAKES RULE OF HARDING TO TASK

"Roosevelt or Wilson Would Have Settled Strike by May," Says Former Cabinet Member.

A quiet man of precise and somewhat old-time manner, whose hair was graying and about whose face there seemed to play the beginning of a smile walked down Olive street yesterday afternoon, unnoticed by most of the hurrying pedestrians. He was Josephus Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer and Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's Cabinet.

A Post-Dispatch reporter saw him and in a statement dictated in the dimly lighted lobby of a bank in which the day's business was over the former Cabinet member criticized the present Republican national administration, took exception to the pending tariff bill, asserted that had Roosevelt or Wilson been in the White House the coal miners' strike, which began April 3, would have been settled by May, and declared that it was a mistake to have reduced the wages of railroad employees "en bloc."

Daniels had been on a chautauqua speaking tour of Iowa, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Nebraska. He missed train connections here yesterday morning, on his way home, and remained over night. The reporter asked Daniels for his views on present-day conditions in the United States as he found them.

"People Disappointed."

"There is disappointment among the people," he said. "Nothing is being done to push us forward. Since the Republicans obtained control of both houses of Congress in 1919 nothing has been done. During the war there was criticism of certain of our naval forces serving abroad. Of this President Wilson said, 'Nothing is being done quite so well as nothing is being done now.'"

"Congress would not co-operate with Wilson and now the members cannot co-operate with themselves. The people are waiting for a tariff bill. In Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas there is one of the finest crops in history. The farmers want to know what they are going to do with it? Who are they going to sell it to? The price of our wheat and cotton is fixed abroad by foreign demands."

"Because of Europe's financial condition the demand is not very large, and the countries can only take the surplus American product by exchanging their own products. This tariff bill hinders and says they shall not do this. There is one excuse for this tariff—for years Republican leaders promised a high tariff act, and if they fail in its passage they confess to the bankruptcy of the administration."

Dilemma of Congress.

"Congress does not want to pass it for it is against the opinions of the members, but they committed themselves and they have to pass it. Now they are proposing a clause, and I believe it is unconstitutional, to let the President reduce the tariff rates, as if they knew they put the tariff too high and want to request the President to ameliorate conditions."

"All this talk about reducing the burden of military expense is bunk. The appropriations this Congress made for the navy provides for a navy twice as large as that of 1915, and funds more than twice those granted then."

"As to the two big strikes, they ought never to have occurred. The wages of railroad men ought not to have been reduced 'en bloc' rents have not been reduced and the cost of living has not gone down. It is no time to reduce wages when the railroads' income is increasing. I think Mr. Harding's proposal in the rail strike should have been accepted at once and he should have stuck to his original proposition."

"The coal strike could have been settled last April as well as now. I feel that if Roosevelt or Wilson had been in the White House the coal strike would have been settled before May. The people are going to have to pay many millions of dollars more than they would have had to for coal."

"I'm for the Strikers."

"I'm a little different than William Allen White in my sympathy for the railroad strikers—I'm 52 per cent for them. I want to be something more than a majority for them. My percentage is just as high for the coal miners. The operators are more to blame for the mine strike than the executives were for the rail strike. There ought to be adjustments from both sides in the strikes, in the interest of the public."

Daniels told of seeing Woodrow Wilson at the former President's home in Washington about two months ago.

"Mr. Wilson weighed more and looked better than at any time since his illness," he said.

"What do you think of the Missouri senatorial primary?" Daniels was asked.

He threw up his hands and the smile broke out on his face.

"Good-by," he said, as he walked out of the bank.

HINES BLAMED FOR RAIL MISHAP

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—The Supreme Court yesterday held Walker D. Hines, director of railroads during the war, solely responsible in the case of Mrs. Gertrude E. Lawrence of Los Angeles, whose husband, George V. Lawrence, was killed by a train at El Centro, April 3, 1919, and who was awarded damages in the sum of $25,000.

The judgment was obtained in Imperial County jointly against Hines and the Southern Pacific Co. The defendants appealed and the Supreme Court reversed the decision as to the railroad, but affirmed it as to Hines.

MAKES FLIGHT IN QUICK TIME

San Antonio-San Diego Aviator Believed to Have Set Record.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 17.—Establishing what is believed to be a record for the 1100-mile air trip from San Antonio, Tex., to San Diego, Cal., Lieut. Westside T. Larsen, army aviator, arrived at Rockwell Field yesterday afternoon in less than 11 hours after he left the

PROTECTION FOR COAL
SHIPMENTS IN ILLINOIS

Attorney-General to Take Steps to Prevent Fuel From Being Held Up by Strikers.

The Attorney-General of Illinois will be instructed to take steps to prevent shipments of nonunion coal across the State from being interfered with in the future by persons intimidating railroad men.
Gov. Small informed E. J. Wallace, a member of the State Fuel Distribution Commission, in a telegram today.

Wallace had asked Gov. Small and President Frank Farrington, of the mine workers, to use their influence to prevent coal for St. Louis from being held up. It is alleged striking miners have interfered with shipments. No reply has been received from Farrington. Subdistrict officers in Illinois have declared the miners were not acting with official sanction in refusing to allow non-union coal to be moved through their communities.

About 500 carloads of coal are in transit toward St. Louis, but only a part of it is being delayed because of the miners' actions, Wallace said today. Lack of motive power on the railroad is holding up many other cars. About 70 cars reached the St. Louis district yesterday, but only two were released for St. Louis industries, many of the others not having been brought into the city from East Side.

It developed at a meeting of the City Fuel Distribution Committee yesterday that several local firms are trucking the fuel across the river from the East Side railroad yards because they believed the Terminal Railway Association was holding up the coal.

President Henry Miller of the Terminal, who is also a member of the committee, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that only coal intended by the committee for release to industries entitled to it under priority claims was being held up. Nelson Cuniff, chairman, and other committee members denied that Miller had been asked to hold back the coal.

Under priority rulings, railroads are in class one for coal, but can seize none without special permission from the Federal Fuel Administration. It was said local industries not facing an immediate crisis would be willing to allow the Terminal to take over coal intended for them rather than have a suspension of Terminal operations.

Five Cars of Coal Seized by Strikers, Railroad Reports.

Officers in St. Louis of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad announced today that five cars of coal, en route to East St. Louis for use by the railroad, were seized by a crowd of men said to be striking miners at Willerville, Perry County, Ill., yesterday afternoon, the crew being forced to sidetrack the coal and go on.

E. E. Norris, vice-president of the railroad, said today that the temporary loss of the coal would have no immediate effect on the company's train service. An injunction granted by Federal Judge English in East St.
Louis Tuesday following a similar loss Saturday night and Sunday morning at Percy, Randolph County, Ill., when 20 cars of coal were side-tracked, the coal being dumped from 10 cars and one car being burned, is expected to enable the company to move the sidetracked cars within a few days.

Norris said the five cars contain-

Oklahoma Minister Says There Is a Love Affair, However, Terms Wife "a Grand Woman."

McALISTER, Ok., Aug. 17.—Denial that he had eloped with Miss Audrey Campbell, a nurse, was made today by the Rev. J. C. Trotter, who is held in jail here on a charge of embezzling funds of the Brooks Institute of Hartshorne, of which he was financial secretary.

The minister, pastor of the Methodist Church, South, of Haleyville, told an interviewer that there was no love affair between himself and Miss Campbell, but denied any illegal relations. Trotter also denied any shortage in his accounts, and declared that when the books are audited he would be vindicated of the embezzlement charge.

The minister declared he was in Oklahoma City the night it was reported he had eloped to Eufaula, Ok., with the nurse. Both were arrested at Eufaula Monday.

Trotter refused to discuss his family affairs except to say that his wife was "a grand woman and a good mother." Mrs. Trotter and her three children are visiting in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Miss Campbell avowed her love for Trotter following her arrest, according to officers.

OBENCHAIN JURY HEAD ACCUSED

Affidavits Sworn to by Five Members Who Voted for Acquittal.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 17.—Affidavits containing charges against M. E. Paddock, foreman of the jury in the second trial of Mrs.

Madalynne Obenchain for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, were filed in the Superior Court yesterday.

The affidavits were sworn to by five members of the jury who voted for Mrs. Obenchain's acquittal. They contained the allegations that Paddock, before a ballot was taken, declared he believed the defendant guilty; that he declared the court's instructions to the jury "ridiculous," and that he would not permit the other jurors to vote when and as they desired.

CUBAN IN CAPITAL TO DIRECT FIGHT ON SUGAR TARIFF

H. A. Rubino, Refinery Operator, Ready to Substantiate Charges That Smoot Tried to Coerce Island.

CAN PROVE ALL OF ALLEGATIONS, HE SAYS

Will Demand Investigation of Schemes to Enrich Bee Sugar Barons at Expense of Consumers.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The New York World this morning publishes the following dispatch from Charles S. Hand, its Washington correspondent:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Prepared to substantiate every accusation made in his recent exclusive interview with the New York World, Henry A. Rubino, authority on Cuban affairs and operator of several large Cuban sugar plantations,

Rubino did not seek Senator Reed, Smoot of Utah or Secretary of Commerce Hoover, whose names he has linked with one or another of the ing her crop. Nor did he have anything to say further concerning Gen. Crowder, President Harding's personal representative in Cuba, who, he charges, carried a letter from Senator Smoot to President Zayas of Cuba virtually notifying Cuba that if the sugar crop were

To Fight for Cheap Sugar.
 "I am here to batte for cheap sugar," explained Rubino. "The fight of the refiners of Cuban sugar is one in the interests of the consumer. We want the tariff driven down so that the cost of sugar to the housewife will drop."

Our motive cannot be called selfish, because if the present extortionate rate of $1.84 per 100 pounds on Cuban sugar stands the tariff is not borne by us, but passed on to the ultimate purchaser. The consumer always pays the tariff. That's the sad part of it."

cause Cuba would not cut her crop to force a sugar shortage which would have sent prices soaring? Senator Smoot and his friends in the Senate are now disciplining Cuba by adopting the highest sugar tariff since Gen. Grant's administration."

"That is what we seek and demand. I have absolute proof of every allegation I have pressed against Senator Smoot, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Gen. Crowder and others."

Lawmakers Deeply Impressed.
During conferences with several sible, to reopen the sugar schedule discussion when the final votes are taken on Friday or Saturday, Rubino learned what a deep impression the World's exposures, coupled with his narrative of attempts to "bribe" Cuba, had made upon the lawmakers.

been coerced unmercifully to acquiesce in schemes to force a sugar famine that would allow the domestic beet sugar barons to mulct the purchasing public of millions.

James W. Wadsworth, senior Senator from New York, came in for repeated criticism for having "flip-flopped" both votes on the sugar schedule last week. His eleven hour change of vote enabled Smoot to defeat an amendment making $1.60 per 100 pounds the rate for Cuban sugar and lift it to $1.80. Previously Wadsworth had voted against a rate of $2 per 100 pounds.

the exposure of the considerable increase there will be in the cost of sugar by reason of Smoot's attempt to discipline Cuban, and at the same time enrich the best sugar barons. Senators are being bombarded with letters from constituents in all parts of the country.

Cuban Legation Makes Representations
 Cuban Legation in Havana, Cuba, today made representations to the Cuban Government regarding the proposed sugar tariff.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Representations disapproving of the sugar import duties of the administration tariff bill as fixed in the Senate are understood to have been made to the State Department by the Cuban Legation.

Who's "Irregular" Now?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NEVER did men reveal themselves more grossly than in the instance of the present movement to bolt Reed. It will be remembered that the chief charge which these gentlemen made against Reed in the campaign was that of party irregularity. His irregularity was the principal particular in the indictment against him. Now we see the very men who sought his defeat on the ground of party disloyalty, themselves bolting the party nominee, and actually setting about nominating another candidate. Certainly Reed never did anything so irregular as that. The incident interests me chiefly, however, as a psychological example. It shows just how sincere the anti-Reed men were in their campaign statements about party irregularity. It proves precisely how much more store they actually did set upon those things, and just how deeply they actually felt about their charges of "disloyalty to the party" when they were making them.

Thus do we mortals cast up our shames and pretenses upon the screen of events, and by our conduct betray our motives. A. B.

He Says He Hadn't Had Time.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOU say "every precaution was taken to prevent wreck." Where was the flagman on train No. 32? Did he flag train No. 47? AN OLD TIMER.

Lower Rents in Chicago.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RENTS are still 50 per cent above pre-war figures, while in Chicago they have been reduced to within 25 per cent of pre-war figures. Wages have been reduced, and until rents come down labor troubles will continue. Cannot you inform people through your paper regarding Chicago reduction? RELL.

Why Men Strike.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN your editorial entitled "Remember the Costs," you say "waste" would be a more proper word than "strike," and you go on to enumerate the great costs of strikes to the public. Right here let me ask you if you do not think it is "waste" when the "Boston Tea Party" a cargo of tea was thrown overboard? It was the only means a helpless people had of asserting themselves. And so it is with the organized labor, if arbitration is not successful.

With capital, whenever they so desire, they can get together and withdraw their financial support to bring about a condition, and the public is helpless, and we often feel this. This is their weapon. And so with the workingman, his only weapon is the privilege of withdrawing his services, and if he can gain his point, by asking his fellow men to do likewise, why should he not do so? You say that only when the point at stake is of overwhelming importance should they strike. This is true. Every good citizen realizes that, and that arbitration is the proper way to settle these differences. But suppose the point at stake cannot be classed as overwhelming, and the workmen, rather than strike, should give in, which they would of necessity have to do if capital once formed the idea that the men were not inclined to go out. The chances are that these differences, while not overwhelming, would be creeping up so often that before long the bosses would have the very conditions they desired in the first place, only they have brought it about gradually in a roundabout way.

Any man with common sense knows it would be better if there were no strikes, but as long as unfairness and profiteering exist there will be strikes—that is, unless such a condition comes about that there will be two classes—the upper class and slaves.

The working classes of America and England have, without a doubt, advanced more than those of any other country, and these two countries hold the record as to successful strikes.

And what does the workingman do with this fair salary he has been getting the last few years? Some, of course, have wasted it, but, on the other hand, our high schools and colleges are filled with their children, who, instead of being turned out to work when children to help feed the family, are now able to stand on the same ground as the professional man's children, and this you will find is the reason the professional man will turn up his nose in disgust and sneer whenever the word strike is mentioned. MARION L.

The Infirmary Pledge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WILL you kindly insert the following card of thanks in your paper:

On behalf of the inmates of the City Infirmary, we wish to thank the various societies and friends for their co-operation in making the picnic, given Aug. 12, 1922, one of the most wonderful treat and entertainments ever given at the infirmary. If you could have heard the many expressions of gratitude and know how the few hours of joy helped to rehabilitate each individual, you would find that your part in the entertainment was a demonstration of love and charity. CHAS. E. BAUR, Superintendent, City Infirmary.

JUDGE ENGLISH'S UNAMERICANISM.

Among the recent unusual utterances of Federal Judge English from the bench in East St. Louis, the most extraordinary was his statement Tuesday that he would refuse to grant further jury trials in contempt cases against strikers and strike sympathizers. He did not specify the authority under which he contemplates such action, and it is difficult to conceive what the authority may be. The constitutional right to a trial by jury has been regarded as unassailable; it is one of the fondest of American traditions.

But, more than that, it is expressly provided by statute. Section 1033 of the Federal statutes, in defining the procedure in contempt cases, says: "In all cases within the purview of this act, such trial may be by the Court, or, upon demand of the accused, by a jury, in which latter event the Court may empanel a jury from the jurors then in attendance." To make the provision more emphatic and concise, the statute further states that "such trial shall conform as near as may be, to the practice in criminal cases prosecuted by indictment or upon information."

Nevertheless, Judge English confessed himself personally affronted by the action of the strikers' counsel in insisting upon jury trials, and went so far in his choler as to disbar one of them—a former United States District Attorney—from practice in the court. His sensitiveness is quite incomprehensible, and it is hardly likely that a higher court would shelter his feelings at the expense of a fundamental civil right.

The remarkable vigor of the measures which Judge English is taking to uphold injunctions granted by him in the rail strike is bound to raise the question of just how far a Federal Court may go in such cases. Several days ago he summoned the Sheriffs and State's Attorneys of three Illinois counties before him and threatened them with removal from office because of alleged interference with the execution of restraining orders granted by him.

While it is obvious that the occupancy of state offices does not immunize the incumbents against Federal contempt proceedings, an attempt to remove them from office by a Federal Judge would be an unheard-of procedure. It could only be accomplished if at all incidentally and by indirect means, under Federal statutes which never contemplated such ends. The direct removal of a state officer is a power not possessed by a Federal court, nor should it be.

In 1821, Thomas Jefferson, out of his great knowledge of history and his amazing vision, wrote: "The germ of dissolution of our Federal Government consists in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary."

Working like gravity by day and by night, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, advancing its noiseless steps like a thief in the night across the field of jurisdiction, until all shall be usurped from the state and Government, and all be consolidated into one.

The language of Judge English in both these recent cases was not such as to indicate a calm and temperate state of mind, and his utterances, as well as his brusque disparagement of Attorney Karch, will not increase popular respect for the dignity of the bench. But the important question is that of jurisdiction. The Post-Dispatch has warned of the growing danger of centralization, and has called upon the Governors to halt the march towards Federal empire. Jefferson's prophetic words are being vindicated. Of the encroachments which he foresaw and dreaded, Judge English's actions are an outstanding example.

A LITTLE LESSON IN FREE SPEECH.

Two young women instructors at the Bryn Mawr College summer school and a male teacher of economics at Amherst College who sought first-hand information about a clothing factory strike in Philadelphia by going to the scene of it obtained in addition a little enlightenment on the subject of modern methods of public regulation.

They had heard that strikers were arrested merely for approaching other workers and asking them to join, and the Amherst instructor discovered the basis of the report when he tried to talk to some of the workers. The whole party was thereupon promptly put under arrest and after a brief wait in cells taken in a police patrol to city hall, where the Magistrate freed the women but fined the man $12.50, with the alternative of 30 days in jail.

At least the impromptu sociological investigation of the teachers was a success from one point of view. It demonstrated to them that free speech at the scene of a strike is nowadays subject to limitations. There used to be a notion that one American citizen could talk to another at will, that even talking to a striker or a strike breaker involved no offense against the law. That theory, it seems, is an anachronism in the view of the police. In the case of strikes they are the custodians of freedom of speech and the arbiters of human intercourse. And is not the Philadelphia courtroom, where this view is sustained in the shadow of Independence Hall?

THE COAL PRICE TEST.

Anticipating the complete resumption of work in the coal mines the next day of the Government is to prevent the plundering of the public by the mine owners, into whose hands the long suspension of production has placed an opportunity and a temptation. Without legislation the Government is practically powerless to check price impositions on consumers. Secretary Hoover some weeks ago succeeded in securing volunteer price agreements from operators, but was without legal power to require them and he reports already a tendency on the part of the proprietors to disregard them. Priority schemes governing car supplies as a means of enforcement are also unreliable, as they would be ineffective in case of a sufficient supply of car tonnage.

The only apparent alternative, then, is legislation establishing some such control over coal prices as the Interstate Commerce Commission now exercises over railroad rates. Coal, like the railroads, is a public utility and therefore is logically subject to the governmental regulatory power.

Once a regulatory law for prices is established the regulation must also inevitably extend to other matters, notably labor. While the present exhibition of the Railroad Labor Board is no shining example of success it is an institution in the making and greater success as a result of the lessons learned in the present shopmen's strike may be hoped.

The administration's dalliance in undertaking the settlement of the coal strike until winter stares the nation in the face almost at the brink of winter is a black mark in its record. A pretty test of its energy and devotion to the public interest will come just before election, however, when people can measure in the prices they are paying for their winter's coal just what the Government has been doing for them.

If it is true, as Ambassador Geddes remarks, that the English people do not understand the reasons which underlie the passage of certain laws in the United States, it is equally true that they have nothing on us.

ANOTHER BASEBALL BLOT.

The expulsion from organized baseball of Pitcher Douglas of the New York National League team is a blot to a season that has been marred by unwise, unsportsmanlike maneuvers of team owners. The trades between the Boston and New York teams of both leagues, for the purpose of enabling the latter to win the pennants and again monopolize the post-season series for the world's championship, have injured the game's reputation. There is a limit to the commercialism and scandal which baseball can survive. The limit, we imagine, is nearly reached.

The case in question demanded the prompt, drastic action that was taken. Douglas is charged with proposing to desert his team for a consideration. Treachery could hardly go further. The black list is the only place for the offender's name. But when ballplayers of flabby moral character see club owners sell players in utter disregard of every community and public obligation, it is not surprising if they become infected with the virus and proceed to put their professional and personal standing on the auction block. Such reasoning is wholly vicious, to be sure, but the provocation is there, nevertheless, and furnished by owners whose deportment necessarily influences the professional standards of all players.

If baseball is to continue to merit public confidence it must do something more than abolish its present obnoxious practices by new rules and regulations. New rules and regulations are necessary, but it is incomparably more important that club owners shall qualify for that trust in the matter of character. Men with no sense of loyalty to their cities, with no pride in the record of their teams, with no interest whatever in baseball except the money they can get out of it, ought to be blacklisted, too. The ways of such persons are always devious, whatever the rules. They are moral liabilities. Club owners, as well as players, must be moral assets to baseball.

MR. ANTWERP'S OPINION.

"I look as if the United States Senate had finally suffered the consequences of taking itself too seriously."

"It has invented the flexible tariff. Under the flexible tariff, as the Senate designs it, the President will have power to increase or lower tariff rates as the occasion demands."

"It looks as simple to the Senate as running the United States looked to Mr. Harding when he made his celebrated observation that after all government is a simple thing."

"It really isn't that simple, but to the simple-minded all things are as easy as rolling off a log. All the President will have to do is to review the state of affairs and fix the tariff accordingly. He will have only to satisfy himself where the popular interest lies and so rule."

"The Senate has been deserted by its sense of humor. This always happens when we take ourselves too seriously. Can you imagine what would happen at the White House under such an arrangement and what the seating capacity in the yard, particularly the back yard, would have to be like?"

"Most considerations of government are trivial beside the matter of tariff. Tariff means money to the beneficiaries of it. Tariff has been the golden calf of American industry, the thing to which we have bowed down for 30 years, the thing we worship."

"Yet the Senate proposes to give the President entire discretion in making the rates! The President, who has more to do now than he possibly can do, is to hear the arguments as between the popular and the vested interests and decide where justice lies and something Congress seldom has been able to do nor the famous Tariff Commission!"

"If the American people knew what such an arrangement would mean, I feel pretty sure they would rise in protest against it. Up to this time we have let the White House desert of politics, as we speak. It typifies government as we think it is. The quiet and dignity of the White House are reassuring. Everything is just as the founders of the Government intended. We have government of and for, and by the people. You can see for yourself."

"Let us take this beautiful place and trample it under foot. Let us cut underground passages through it. Let us provide screens for the purpose of making it impossible for the people, assembled in the front yard, to identify exactly all the people out back. Let us desecrate the grounds and the old-fashioned colonial house with government as it really is."

"Would we like it that way, do you think? Or would we prefer to keep it as it is? If we can answer that we know whether or not we want the flexible tariff. Mr. Antwerp said."

"Fatty" Arbuckle is going around the world. At that he has nothing on the world, which has been going around "Fatty" for some little time.

After reading some of the schedules of the new tariff bill we have concluded that the Republican party has no proficients to shed.

If the world should come to an end now, it would be a bad one.

Sir: Prohibition is the greatest blessing of the ages. To what stupendous degree has it inspired respect and reverence for law, among our citizens! How it has reduced holdups, murders and other crimes of violence! How it has cut down the nation's economic waste, turning into useful channels the streams of money that used to enrich the wicked distillers of alcohol! To what vast extent has it inspired brotherly love, not only in our coal fields but even upon our very transportation systems! In fact, there's only one bad feature about the whole thing—the quality and price of the stuff you are forced to buy nowadays are simply scandalous. A. L. B.

How things are going down! Some evidence from the weekly market review of the Hardware Age:

"Among the price changes announced during the week were:
"Pittsburg—Railroad spikes advanced from $2 to $3 per ton; pig iron advanced from $1 to $2 per ton; snow shovels advanced 50 cents per doz. Miller Rubber Co. reduced prices on its line of tires and tubes."

"Boston—Cap and set screws advanced 5 per cent; Page Lewis Arms Co. reduced prices on its models A, B, C and D guns."

"New York—Tracks advanced 10 per cent. "Chicago—Stove pipe and elbows advanced 5 per cent."

"Cincinnati—Rivets were reduced 5 per cent; cash weights advanced $2 per ton."

"We ought to get back to normalcy pretty soon at that rate."

Sir: Here is one for you from Prairie du Rocher, Ill. In a local shoe repairing shop, at rear end:

Please Do Not Boot Leger in Here.

Evidently the bootleggers are active when one has to resort to such polite, persuasive placards as this to keep them off the premises.

SOVIET RUSSIA AND RECOGNITION.

From the New York World.

THE reason why the State Department has not previously recognized the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania is that the State Department has had a theory. The theory was that there existed a "real Russia" of which the existing Russia, with its Bolshevik dictators and hostile peasants, was a counterfeit. The "real Russia," according to the State Department, was not the de facto Government in Moscow, but a Russian Government situated in Paris, London, Rome and Washington. The Ambassador of this "real Russian" Government was M. Bakmeteff, who recently resigned. It followed from this theory that the subordinate nations of the old Russian empire—the Letts, the Lithuanians and the Estonians—had no right to declare their independence of "Russia," since "Russia" did not at present exist in Russia. As Soviet Russia was not "Russia," it did the Baltic peoples no good to have their independence recognized by Soviet Russia. Only the "real Russia" could do that, and the "real Russia" lacked a foothold in Russia. At bottom this act is a recognition that the Soviet Government, however distasteful, is the de facto Government of Russia. For it is the Soviet Government and no other Russian Government which signed the charter of independence of these three states. They exist legally by virtue of treaties with Soviet Russia. And while we do not recognize the legality of the Soviet Government we have recognized the legality of one of its acts, which is as important an act as any that a duly constituted sovereign Government can do.

The ground has been cleared for recognition of the Soviet Russia when a satisfactory economic settlement is reached.

MILLIONS FOR AMUSEMENTS.

From the Atlanta Journal.

THOSE who have supposed that the American people were going, if not the primrose way, to the Everlasting Bonfire, at least the path to penury and woe, through overindulgence in amusements, should be comforted to learn from a report by the Treasury Department that actual expenditures on this account come to only 30 cents a month per capita, or something less than 3 cents a day. Is that so bad for these glad times? The total, however, bulks to approximately $2,000,000 a month, showing once again that we all would be wealthy if we could live on enough pennies. Sixty-three millions a month, more than three-quarters of a billion a year, for amusement does appear rather a free-handed budget for that item, until we think of the multitudes of clappers and drums, not to speak of toddlers and tired business men, whom it provides with diversion. The rightful criticism would seem to be that not every American is spending his statistical 2 cents a day. Some are consuming it upon such prosaic necessities as bread and butter.

REORGANIZATION PLANNED FOR CITY GARBAGE SYSTEM

Motorization and Construction of Additional Incinerators Considered.

Tentative plans for the rehabilitation of the St. Louis garbage collection and disposal system were announced today by Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk, a major part of the reorganization being the installation of tractors and trailers for collection in place of the present horse-drawn vehicle system. The motorization of the system would cost between $150,000 and $180,000, Fisk estimates.

The primary reason for the change is the unprecedented increase in the amount of garbage collected each day. The amount was 457 tons yesterday, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over this time a year ago. It is expected the 500-ton mark will be exceeded before the end of the month.

The plans will be presented to the Board of Public Service early this fall, Fisk said. The construction of two additional incinerating plants, doing away entirely with the present plan of taking the garbage down the Mississippi River to farmers, also is planned.

An incinerator is now under construction at present at the end of Chouteau avenue, with a capacity of 30 tons a day.

RELIGIOUS ENDING SOUGHT FOR NEW CONSTITUTION

Kansas City Ministerial Alliance Suggests Concluding Sentences.

Special to the Post-Dispatch, Aug. 17.—The present constitution has no formal conclusion or benediction, but the new one will be more completely rounded out if the Kansas City Ministerial Alliance has its way. The Alliance yesterday submitted to William F. Frank of Kirksville, chairman of the Constitutional Convention Committee on miscellaneous provisions, two sentences which it desires be adopted as the concluding words.

Those sentences, for which a minister today will argue to the committee, and which would form an ascription, or declaration of praise to the deity of Christians, are as follows:

"Now unto the King, eternal, immortal, invisible, the Almighty God, the Author of all authority and law, and to Jesus Christ, the ruler of Nations, who has given us our fair commonwealth with its resources, its freedom and its peace, we ascribe all glory, honor and praise. Trusting in Him, we will continue to incorporate His teachings, ideals and spirit into the life and laws of our State."

TWO WARRANTS ISSUED FOR MAN WHOSE AUTO HIT FAMILY

Felony Charge Brought Against Shoemaker by Assistant Circuit Attorney.

Two warrants charging felonious wounding were issued by Assistant Circuit Attorney Schweitzer today against Floyd Coltenberger of 3803 North Market street, a shoemaker, whose automobile struck five members of the family of Fred Schubert, as they were waiting to board a street car in front of 6197 Gravois avenue, Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Schubert, who live at 5535 Arsenal street, and their three children, were returning home from a visit. Velma Schubert, 19 years old, a daughter, was instantly killed.

Coltenberger was held for homicide by a coroner's verdict under $20,000 bond pending submission of that case to the grand jury. The warrants issued today mention the injuries to Mr. and Mrs. Schubert and their children, who will be independent of the grand jury action.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

THERE is a Mysterious Stranger in St. Louis. He wears diamond earrings, and whenever he walks or rides about, Post-Dispatch readers see him and write to the What-Did-You-See editor about him. This is a free country, and any man has the right to wear any kind of earrings he chooses, though prudence indeed might dictate that he should not saty out too late, in unfrequented streets, when so adorned. Perhaps the Man with the Earrings has seen some things of interest in his movements about the city—the Post-Dispatch will be pleased to hear from him. One of the many letters about him is printed as the first of today's selections, the writers of which will receive $1 each.

1445A Blackstone avenue.

BRONZE HUED NOW.
Near the City Hall an elderly woman accosted me and wanted to know at whom she was pointing her finger. When I told her it was Gen. Grant, she exclaimed, "Land sakes, I thought he was a white man."

MRS. JOSEPHINE BURKART,
3329 Easton avenue.

HAD THE TIME.
While waiting for a car at Broadway and Olive I saw two negroes. One asked the other what time it was. The other promptly drew an alarm clock from her handbag and remarked, "It's 10 minutes of 11."

KENNETH ROPER,
665 Clark avenue, Webster Groves.

THE CORN BELT.
I saw several stalks of corn fully 15 inches tall growing in a rain spout on the second floor of a building between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets on Olive street.

V. W. COTTAM,
7235 South street, Maplewood.

DID IT HIMSELF.
I saw a man stop his machine on Washington avenue, leave his motor running and lock his steering wheel. When he came back an hour later he wanted to know who had started his engine.

E. P. FREUND,
1418 Hickory street.

PARAMOUNT DUTY.
I saw an man on an Olive car arguing religion with the motorman. A gust of wind blew his hat off and it landed in a woman's lap. "Just hold it," called the man, "until I get through with this infidel."

MORGAN PITCHER,
3329 Pine boulevard.

HALLUP.
On ladies' day at the Marquette swimming pool I noticed a life guard swimming about in the pool apparently looking for something in the water. Later I learned he was hunting for an old woman's false teeth which she had taken out for fear of choking. He found them.

MABELLE LECLERQ,
3445A Iowa avenue.

WIRELESS.
The telephone rang in a grocery store. The clerk being very busy, cried out, "Just a minute."

JEFFERSON JUD,
3285 Watson rd.

RURAL PRECAUTION.
The other evening, driving into East St. Louis on State street, I was mystified at the antics of a red light ahead of me. It would appear suddenly, dash to the left a few feet, remain there a few seconds, dash back to the right and disappear. This happened three or four times. Then I passed a farmer with a load of corn headed for market. He had a red lantern on the seat beside him and every time he heard an automobile coming he would grab up the lantern hold it out, at arm's length and return it after the auto had passed by safely.

MARK MILLARD,
431 N. 83rd street, Edgemoor Station.

WHAT MAKE OF CAR?
Sunday evening I saw an "auto lizard" spend two hours on the Park avenue side of Lafayette park trying to induce passing girls to ride with him. He was unsuccessful.

W. C. SCOTT,
1542A Mississippi av.

HOW TO BE NOTICED.
I was walking behind a fellow who was carrying a brown jug. At every street intersection he would meet with someone who would ask, "What's in the jug, Shorty?" If you want to create an impression, carry a jug.

JACK WARHOVER,
411 N. Thirty-fifth st., East St. Louis.

MUST'N GET WET.
I saw over a hundred persons bathing in Lake Hill swimming pool. Some clouds gathered and rain fell. Every bather left the pool and stampeded for the bath house. The life saver and two others braved it out near the stairs for a while, but when more rain fell they also left.

E. H. WENDELL,
5272A Waterman av.

HASTE, WASTE.
I saw a tourist throw away $40 in as many seconds today. Approaching Pope at Florissant on a down-grade he stepped on the brake with his right foot while his left foot slept. Stripped gears!

CHARLES MORTON,
905 Penrose street.

PICNIC DAY.
The Sunday crowd at the Zoo was listening to the band concert. A group of country people listened to the strains of music, and remarked on the papers strewn about the grass by park diners.

"Oh, see, they are having a picnic, and have brought their own band," was the explanation of one of the members of the group.

E. C. BELL,
6436 West Park avenue.

BEG PARDON.
While dining in a cafeteria I saw a man struggling along heavily laden with various dishes, one filled with rice. As he was passing one of the armchair occupants the dish of rice dropped into the diner's lap. The man endeavored to repair the damage with his napkin, making hurried strokes up and down the victim's trousers.

FRANK L. DOLIS,
3507A Cherokee street.

COULDN'T STOP.
I saw a woman driving a new automobile, pass a corner drug store three times, waving excitedly each time at a group of men standing on the corner. None of the men seemed to know her, but as she passed the third time, one of the men darted from the group, jumped on the running board and stopped the car for the woman, who had not learned how to stop the car.

MARION L. GRIFFIN, Clayton.

GETTING THE EFFECT.
Last Sunday, in an amusement park, I saw two soldiers walk up to a stand and ask for a glass of water. The clerk told them water was 5 cents a glass. They asked if it was six glasses for a quarter. When told yes they paid their quarter, drank six glasses and walked away with a pretended stagger.

RALPH LIFE, 659 Baden avenue.

FORGOT HIMSELF.
An elderly man entered the office recently and handed the boss a paper which read, "I am deaf and dumb. Your help is solicited." The boss handed the man some change.

and the man said, "Thank you, sir."

LEONA MENNEMEYER, Shreveport.

HEIGHO, HEIGHO.
I saw two boys having the time of their lives. One boy was curled up in an automobile tire, and the other was rolling him down the street.

A. BRESNEN, 117 West Madison avenue, Kirkwood.

DEPENDS ON THE GIRL.
Should matrimony cause such excitement as this?

A young man planning to be married in the morning at 8 was to rehearse the evening before at the church. Half way to the church he noticed he had put his shoes on with out first putting his socks on.

MRS. F. KLATZER, 1921A Sample avenue.

A CAGED CAROLER.
Working near the city sanitarium, I have been much interested and entertained by the carolling of a young negro inmate. He imitates the red bird, canary and mocking bird. He applies his tongue to the crevice between his two upper front teeth, which are the most perfect I have ever seen.

CAPE BRETON STRIKE SITUATION IS REPORTED GROWING WORSE

Colliers Flooding as Result of Men's Exhaustion—Troop Trains and Workers Are Stopped.
By the Associated Press.
STONEY, Nova Scotia, Aug. 17.—With four collieries reported flooding and two of them reported already damaged, the strike situation in Cape Breton today is worse than at any time since it started. Pumping services, which for 36 hours were maintained by officials and other volunteers, are failing at some collieries through exhaustion of the men.
Col. Elkins, from Halifax with 250 troops, has occupied a colliery at New Aberdeen after cars with a party of workers who had been sent from Sydney to man the pumps had been seized and the workers sent back to Sydney. Military reinforcements are expected here from Quebec. Col. Elkins' troop train was stoned as it entered New Aberdeen.

Senators Score Five Runs As Browns Wait for Rain; Umpire Reports Williams

Shocker, Despite Bad Leg, Wins First Game of Double-Header, Not Unsettled Weather Unsettles Ray Kolp in Second Contest—Foster Makes Fine Impression.

By Dent McSkimming,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A long time ago, it is related, a cobbler, out of curiosity and misdirected ambition, thought he would try his hand at painting his house. In the midst of his job, he fell from the ladder and broke his leg, besides having the bucket of paint come down on his head. That was a long time ago, but ever since that disastrous episode it has been generally accepted by every good cobbler that it is well for each to stick to his last.

Now, the St. Louis Browns are a good baseball club. They are acclaimed even in this Eastern city as a smart, capable team, whose pennant aspirations are justified by the ability of the players composing the team. This ability, however, is in the matter of playing baseball and not in the matter of meteorology. Nobody ever accused the Browns of being weather prophets.

Yesterday, after winning No. 1 game of their double bill, 2 to 3, when it came time to play the second game with the Senators, some of the Brownie players gazed skyward and, perceiving a bit of a cumulous cloud, mistook it for a nimbus and said one to another: "It's about to rain; take your time."

Well, Ray Kolp was pitching for the Browns and Walter Johnson was up for the Senators. Neither team scored in the first inning, but Washington did everything but bite Kolp on the ear in the second inning. While his teammates were making ill-disguised efforts to prolong the contest, in hope of a shower, Kolp threw the ball at the plate and each succeeding Senator smote the thing for a hit.

The Shower That Never Came. Still no shower and five runs had been scored. It was evident that the Senators did not intend themselves to the prospect of rain. They seemed to enjoy playing their trade as baseball players.

Kolp was removed after Walter Johnson hit a home run, scoring No. 5 of the inning. Billy Bayne and Jerry Meine finished the job of pitching. And the rain never arrived.

The Browns eventually lost by the score of 11 to 3. They won the first game through the brilliant pitching of Urban Shocker and timely hitting.

Yesterday's even break added another half game to the lead of the Tankees over the Browns. Fohl's club now enjoys a full game advantage. One game will be played here this afternoon, concluding the series of five games.

Shocker's Leg Hurt. There were two particularly pleasing aspects of Shocker's victory over young Brillhart in the first game. One of them was Shocker's own brave effort in spite of a sorely injured leg and the other was the performance of Eddie Foster at third base.

Shocker, getting a bit of fielding practice at third base before the double-header, Tuesday, was struck on the left thigh by a line drive from the bat of Herman Brockie. The injury was really severe, but knowing that the club was hard pressed at the present moment for pitchers, Shocker insisted that he be permitted to work.

On his first trip to the plate he grounded out to the infield, but on the next three attempts he singled to center field. Each time he hoisted to first base like a one-legged man without a crutch. In the fourth inning he was forced at second because he could not beat a throw and in the eighth he was given a stolen base when he went hipity-hop into second while the Washington players stood dumfounded. Catcher Piccinini was so surprised to see the cripple go down that he threw the ball wide of the mark. It was one of the funniest plays of an afternoon filled with comedy.

In the ninth inning, with two out, Harris beat out a bunt down the third-base line. Shocker reached the ball, but fell, his weak limb collapsing under him. Nothing but an indomitable spirit kept him in the game to pitch to Judge, who filed to Tobin for the final out.

In his first game in a Brown uniform Eddie Foster fielded brilliantly and hit with a purpose. He operated the hit-and-run with Gerber on third and Tobin on first in the second inning, scoring Gerber and putting Tobin on third. Foster let the first strike float over the plate, yet using himself in such position as to hit to right field. On the next pitch he pulled the ball through Peckinpaugh's shortstop position, entirely outwitting the wily Roger, who was hustling over to cover second on Tobin's intended steal.

Again, in the seventh, Foster placed a drive near the right field foul line. He was on second, when the ball was returned to the infield and Shocker scored. Foster came in and fielded Rice's bunt in the ninth inning of the first game in very clever style. It is evident that he has not reached the end of his usefulness as a big league player, although he has been in the big show since 1919. He is a cool, deliberate batter, offering at no pitch that does not come over the plate and is a hard man to pitch to. He can hurt well and will fit in perfectly between the leadoff man, Tobin, and the consistent hitters.

Even Brooks Not Enough. While an even break in a double-header is not generally regarded as a day's effort, it is difficult to see how it can be regarded as any-

Lewis Throws Gestowdt.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Aug. 17.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Joe Gestowdt, Lithuanian challenger, in two straight falls here last night. The first fall came in 23 minutes and the second in 3 minutes.

DAVIS DEFEATED N. Y. FIVE TIMES IN 1920

"DIXIE" DAVIS, who won 19 and lost 18 games in 1920, appears to have recovered his championship stride. The Browns can use good pitching of the stripe Davis delivered two years ago when he beat the Yanks in all five games he pitched against them.

The rout in the second game gave Fohl an opportunity to bring in Josh Billings, Henry Meine and Gene Robertson. Of the three Robertson was far the most attractive. Gene knocked Walter Johnson for a single and a double. He was not asked to handle any stage of the game.

Oh, Look Who's Here! The rout in the second game gave Fohl an opportunity to bring in Josh Billings, Henry Meine and Gene Robertson. Of the three Robertson was far the most attractive. Gene knocked Walter Johnson for a single and a double. He was not asked to handle any stage of the game.

Fohl has Vandilder ready for the final game of the series, Erickson or Mogridge will work for Washington.

Tonight the Browns will move to Philadelphia to open a short series tomorrow.

Umpire Reports Ken Williams. Umpire Tom Connolly said, after the Browns-Senators game yesterday, that he would make a report to President Ban Johnson concerning an apparent attempt on the part of Kenneth Williams of the Browns to delay the second game of the double-header when rain threatened.

In the last half of the fourth inning, Harris hit a bouncer over second base. Two were out. Williams fielded the ball and held it while Harris continued to second. Harris invited Williams to make a play at second, retiring the side and again hastening the game. Washington was leading, 7 runs to 2. Williams, however, declined to put Harris out and the Washington man continued to third.

Still Williams held the ball, declining to make an attempt to catch Harris. He was thinking of making a written report of the incident.

The incident included in his report the circumstances under which Sam Rice ran into a double play in the same fourth inning. Sam forced Walter Johnson at second on a grounder to McManus and then he slowed up in his "dash" for first long enough to make the double killing, another means of hastening the game—for Washington led 7 to 2.

Umpire Connolly did not admonish Williams at the time, but he later declared his intention to make a written report of the incident.

DUNDEE IS ELASTIC CHAMPION OF WORLD; BOXES IN 3 CLASSES

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Johnny Dundee, pugilist, is the elastic champion of the world.

In 12 years of fighting he has defeated some of the leading lightweights of the country, won the junior lightweight championship of the world at 130 pounds and, as a result of his victory over Danny Frush of Cleveland, is claimant of the world featherweight title. In this last claim he is upheld by the New York State Boxing Commission, which vacated Johnny Kilbane's title here for his refusal to meet Dundee in a championship contest.

In order to meet the lightweights, Dundee trained to scale around the 135-pound mark. To win and defend his 130-pound title, he successfully made their weight on numerous occasions, and against Frush he scaled to 124½ pounds.

This latter feat he said was "easy," and he declared that he was thinking seriously of reducing a few more pounds and trimming some of the bantam boys.

Weismueller to Compete.

By the Associated Press. PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 17.—A large number of swimmers have been entered in the Central Amateur Athletic Union tournament to be held here Saturday and Sunday. Two nationally known swimmers will compete in the meet, Johnny Weismueller, known as the "human fish," and Norman Ross of the Illinois Athletic Club.

Sarazen's 32 equaled the course record for the first nine. Beautiful approach shots, followed by deadly puttings, gave the Pittsburgh youth his low score. He was 4 up on Cruikshank at the turn and increased his lead at the tenth, but the New Jersey shot got underway and took the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes. This cut Gene's lead to 1 up, but he won the seventeenth and halved the final hole.

Cruikshank is the first golfer to outplay Sarazen on the last nine holes of the course, during the tournament. Gene shot a 69 for the morning round, while Cruikshank's card totaled 71, three strokes under par.

Patterson Wins First Set From Count De Gomar

Australasian Star Puts Team Off to Good Start in Match with Spain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—Perfect weather conditions and a gallery of several hundred spectators greeted the Spanish and Australian Davis Cup tennis teams when they opened the final round on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club here this afternoon.

Gerald L. Patterson represented Australasia and faced Count Manuel de Gomar, in the initial singles of the three-day play.

Patterson won the first set of match at 6-3. The Australian opened with service, but was wild, dropping the first game on "errors," which included two double faults. De Gomar, little better, lost the second game on outs. Both played erratically, the Spaniard in particular netting and driving out on comparatively easy shots until Patterson had piled up a four-game lead. De Gomar then made it 3-4 when the Australian messed up a number of the Spaniard's soft returns. Patterson then speeded up his play, breaking through De Gomar's service and winning at 6-3 on his own delivery and smashing net play.

Grimes, pitching first game since suspension, defeats Cardinals, 3-2. Brooklyn Star Holds Rickenmen Safe While Hy Meyers Drives in Run That Beats Jeff Pfeffer in Pitching Duel.

Burling Grimes, announcement of whose reinstatement was made in the morning, yesterday afternoon gave one of the greatest exhibitions of pitching witnessed on the local greensward in many moons. Grimes, who is the star spitballer for the Brooklyn club, downed the Cardinals 3-2, in the first of a series of three games. It was the fourth straight defeat for the Rickenmen, and with New York winning, it dropped the locals to 2½ games behind the pacemakers.

It was Grimes' sensational pitching in the pinches that enabled him to gain the victory. He was hit safely nine times, while Pfeffer gave eight, but on a majority of occasions when his meant runs Grimes was able to "bear down" in such masterly fashion that even Rogers Hornsby, the league's leading batter, was helpless.

One of the greatest exhibitions of pinch pitching seen here was turned in by Grimes in the third inning. To start, Flack reached first when Schmandt kicked his grounder. Then Topcorer doubled and Smith singled, scoring Schultz, who ran for Flack. Then Smith stole. That brought up Hornsby with men on second and third. Grimes served up everything he had and Rogers fanned. Then Mueller walked to pack the bases. Fournier was retired on strikes, while Clemens sent a fly to Griffith.

Grimes Again the Master. The Brooklyn pitcher again showed his mastery over the Cardinal sluggers in the seventh. Pfeffer opened with a double and Schultz singled, putting men on first and third with none out. Then it was that Grimes again showed he is one of the best pitchers in baseball today. Topcorer fouled to Schmandt, Smith, with a 3-1 call, fouled to High. Grimes decided to take no chances on Hornsby and walked the slugger, billing the bases. The strategy worked, as Mueller sent an easy roller to Olson. So what promised to be a rally ended without a score.

While the spitballer was able to "bear down" in this fashion in the pinch, he also was given some great support, especially by one Hy Meyers, who cavorts in center. Meyers made three remarkable catches that saved trouble. They were at the expense of Clemens, Flack and Topcorer. That Wheat also deprived Lavan of a safety with a great running catch of a drive to left center.

While Grimes deserves all the praise for his masterly exhibition, the work of Pfeffer cannot be overlooked. The right-hander turned in the best game pitched by a flinger of Ricken's staff for some time, but he was forced to bow to Grimes. Pfeffer really had tough luck, as two of the runs for the invaders were more or less of the "fluke" variety.

The first run for the Dodgers in the opening frame was tainted. One out, Johnston hit a grounder close to second that Topcorer failed to reach and it went for a hit. Then Johnston stole second. Griffith fanned. Flack followed with a long fly to left. Smith got both hands on

Cardinals Obtain Pitcher Fred Toney From Braves to Help in Final Pennant Drive

Big Right-Hander, Who Refused to Report to Boston Club, Comes for Waiver Price of $2500—Should Prove Valuable Addition to Faltering Staff of Rickeymen.

By Herman Wecke.

Fred Toney, the big right-hander, who recently was traded to the Cardinals by the Boston Braves, is now the property of the Cardinals. The big pitcher comes to the Rickeymen via the waiver route from the Boston club. The waiver price in the National League is $2500 and therefore the Cardinals get a hurler for that amount, who in 1921 could not have been purchased for $20,000.

Official confirmation of the Cardinals claim to Toney was contained in a telegram from George Washington Grant, owner of the Boston club, this morning, in which he stated that the Braves had notified National League headquarters that they would not withdraw their waivers on the right-hander.

The Braves asked for waivers on the right-hander after he had refused to report to the club. They figured that $2500 would be better than a total loss.

It was announced that the Cardinals had wired Toney to report to the team at once.

This is one of the eleventh-hour moves of Manager Branch Rickey to strengthen the Cardinals for their final drive for the pennant. Today the team is two and one-half games behind the Giants.

Rickey figures that Toney, in spite of the rather poor record he made this season with the Giants, has a lot of good games in his right arm. And when Toney is right he is one of the hardest pitchers in any man's league to defeat. Before the recent trade between the Giants and Braves, which sent Hugh McCullum to New York, Toney had won five games and lost a like number for McGraw.

Should Prove Valuable Addition. Toney should prove a valuable addition to the club, as the team is shy on pitching, as evinced by records of the staff printed in the Post-Dispatch yesterday. The statistics showed that the pitchers had allowed an average of 4.25 a game.

What's more, Toney probably will welcome a chance to pitch here. The Cardinals will have a chance for the pennant and Toney's only reason for refusing to join the Braves was that he did not care to hurt for a tail-end club. He is at present at his home in Tennessee.

Toney is 32 years old, and one of the biggest men physically in the national pastime. He stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs more than 200 pounds. The big right-hander has his best years in the big leagues in 1911 with the Cubs. In 1912 he was sent to Louisville. The next year he was back, but again shunted to the A. A. in 1915. Brooklyn bought him from Louisville, and since that time he has

FRED TONEY, who comes to St. Louis after refusing to report to the Braves.

Rickey obtained Toney for $2500, the waiver price, after other contending teams had waived their claiming rights.

Antiss Asserts as Far as He Is Concerned Dempsey-Brennan Bout Will Go On.

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 17.—Gov. McCray made official announcement today that the fight between Jack Dempsey and Bill Brennan scheduled for Michigan City, Ind., on Labor day would not be held.

"The fight will not take place," the Governor said.

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 17.—Interest in the controversy over the holding of the proposed Jack Dempsey-Bill Brennan fight at Michigan City on Labor day switched to La Porte County, following the announcement by Gov. McCray that he would give officials of that county the right to prohibit the holding of the bout.

To date officials at Michigan City have given no indication that they will take action to prohibit holding of the contest. On the other hand, they have declared they have no intention of stopping the bout. Sheriff William E. Antiss of Laporte County, in a statement yesterday, declared that as far as he was concerned, the bout would go on as scheduled. He said that the contest was to be a 10-round no-decision exhibition, and not a prize fight, and added that such an exhibition was entirely legal. Other county officials

Miss Wills Plays Wonderful Tennis To Gain Semifinal

Sixteen-Year-Old Californian Outplays Her Ranking Rival in Title Event.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Youth had its fling as the field in the national women's lawn tennis cup singles narrowed to the semifinal round. Miss Helen Wills lifted her game to its topmost flight, to score a remarkable reversal. The 16-year-old Californian girl defeated Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup by a score of 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills.

Other semifinal survivors yesterday were Miss Leslie Bancroft, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy. Today Mrs. Mallory meets Miss Bancroft, while Mrs. Bundy and Miss Wills meet.

Mrs. Martha Bayard, who holds the junior national indoor title, carried so clever an opponent as Mrs. Bundy to the limit of three sets. Mrs. Bayard was beaten, but her net attack and her fine battling through hard-fought rallies brought about the best match of the tournament. In the end, the ability of Mrs. Bundy prevailed and she reached the semifinal round by a score of 12-10, 4-6, 6-0.

In the other matches, which resulted in their winners moving forward into the same round, Mrs. Mallory, the playing-through holder of the championship, defeated Miss Edith Sigourney, the Boston girl, who was her partner in the doubles at Wimbledon. The match contained the characteristic powerfully played strokes, the amazing spotting down of the ball within inches of the lines.

In less than half an hour Mrs. Mallory had finished her task by the tally 6-0, 6-1, the lone game that Miss Sigourney won being the opener for the second set.

Miss Bancroft, the left-hander from Boston, fought through a spirited encounter against Miss Clara Casel. There were spirited rallies, booming attacks against the backhand of opponents, and much of the flashing activity of competitors in full and able control of the ball. The first set was much of an uphill battle for Miss Bancroft, whose steel-framed racket on occasions seemed inclined to play her tricks. Once she had steadied down to the bewildering array of line and crossing shots, the end came soon at 6-6, 6-3. It was at passing drives that Miss Bancroft stood out as the contest terminated in her favor.

The performances of Miss Wills in defeating Mrs. Jessup overshadowed all else in the brilliant program of the day. Under the fore of her ranging rival's blazing drives and placements, the girl was cool and unflinching. It was the amazing changes of pace, a fast drive being followed by Miss Wills' favorite soft drop shot at the net, which provoked the applause from the crowd, the largest by the way, since the beginning of the classic tournament.

It was in the third set that Miss Wills revealed the true strength of her game. No matter how diligently Mrs. Jessup attacked, she was repulsed by shots far better than those she sent across. It was the cool, deliberate manner in which the girl selected the right shots at the proper time that turned the important games of this set into her column.

Mrs. Jessup fought with all the weapons she possessed up to 4-1 on games against her.

The ranking player won the sixth game and then, at the critical moment it was evident that her strength was falling. In the seventh game with the advantage of her own service she faltered for double faults. That marked the beginning of the end as Miss Wills finished off the match with a love game in which she played the same cracking volleys across court which have made Little Bill Johnston and Dick Williams members of the Davis Cup team.

Municipal Swim Carnival Tonight

15 Events Scheduled to Be Decided in Marquette Pool—Local Stars Entered.

The ninth annual Municipal Athletic Association swimming championships will be decided in the Marquette pool tonight, starting at 7 o'clock. Danforth Is Sent To Tulsa Outfit Browns Release Southpaw to Western League Club on Optional Agreement.

Dave Danforth, southpaw pitcher, upon whom the Browns recently obtained waivers from all the clubs in the major leagues, has been sent to the Tulsa club of the Western League on an optional agreement. It was announced yesterday by Business Manager Bob Quinn. Danforth is scheduled to depart today to join his new mates at Omaha.

The local American League club asked for waivers on the left-hander, obtained from Columbus for eight players and cash, after his recent reinstatement following a suspension of 10 days.

Danforth was suspended after he had pitched a "doctored" ball and the sphere was thrown out by Umpire Owens. This occurred in a game with the Yankees.

In a statement, printed in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, Danforth asserted that he was not guilty and that he had never "doctored" a baseball.

The Giants took a hard battle from the Pirates, 7 to 6. The Cubs battled out a 9 to 4 victory over the Braves and Cincinnati won from the Phillies, 3 to 1.

AT THE MISSOURI THEATER
In a Telegram to the Theater

Manager Goldman, WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 14 Missouri Theater, St. Louis:

Every member of the St. Louis Browns wishes to congratulate the management of the Missouri Theater for staging a Browns' Booster Week, from Manager Lee Fohl down to little Joe Ryan, the mascot. All were exceedingly glad to hear they were being thought of in such a novel manner before the eyes of the St. Louis fans on the screen of the beautiful Missouri Theater. Boys, what could be sweeter? A word of encouragement just now to the Fighting Browns means a great deal, especially when it comes from the home-town folks. Here's hoping BROWN'S WEEK at the MISSOURI THEATER proves a huge success, a regular World's Series.

People are Pretty Wise
in this 20th Century

SIXTY YEARS ago, Abraham Lincoln said that you couldn't "fool all of the people all of the time." But today you can't fool many of the people any of the time.

It's getting to be a pretty wise old world. The man who still believes "that there's one born every minute" is the one.

People and products have got to make a name for themselves.

No product is ever any better than the man who produces it.

Take for example, the Hop Flavored malt extracts, for which there is so large a demand. We have been in the malt extract business for fifty years. We don't know it all yet. But we do know one thing. That to cheapen a malt extract in any way is to destroy its value.

Ninety per cent of the Hop Flavored malt extracts made today are filled with moisture, adulterated with cheap corn and flavored with cheap loose hops. They are not worth taking home because they can not give results.

Our "Puritan" Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup is made only from the choicest barley produced in America. It is malted by our own secret processes which we have learned through fifty years of experience.

It has the hops right in it, and these hops are from the latest Bohemian crops.

The result is that there is probably more Puritan Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup sold today than all the other malt extracts combined. People recognize quality and value. And in this day, Mr. Lincoln, you can't fool many of the people any of the time.

There are now several million people in America who ask for and demand

Wirth Says France's Threats
Have Sent Mark to Present
Low Level, but "She Gains
Nothing."

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT.
(A Staff Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch and the New York World)

(Copyright, 1933, by News and Pulitzer Pub. Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—"France is driving hundreds of people penniless from Alsace-Lorraine; thousands are trembling before the same fate," Chancellor Wirth told the correspondent yesterday.

"Not satisfied with threats, the French are taking reprisals against innocent people. Four years after the war, three after the signing of the treaty, is this peace or a continuation of war?"

"French policy is driving Germany full speed into Austria's plight, but it cannot be done with the same impunity. Germany is a complicated problem, not merely a single industrial center like Vienna."

"What is France gaining? Nothing; she simply renders Germany bankrupt so she cannot pay either cash or delivery in kind. Poincare accuses us of deliberately bankrupting ourselves, but the mark has been driven down to 1000 to the dollar only because of France's continued threats."

"We made the peasants agree to sell grain to the industrial centers at a low fixed price. Now we must pay them in worthless paper marks."

"The 10,000,000 gold marks paid Tuesday came from the fund held for the purchase of foreign grain to prevent need among a portion of our people."

"The tragedy of the fulfillment policy is the collapse of the mark, which breaks down our domestic institutions. Germany wants to remain democratic and the problem for the next few months is to safeguard the public in order to prevent the collapse of central European civilization."

Mark Takes Another Tumble.
The mark has tumbled to a new low level, more than 1000 to the dollar, following the break-up of the London conference, but the wild speculation in industrial stock that accompanied all previous slumps in the mark is lacking now. With German industry booming, everyone was anxious to put almost worthless marks into stock, but now fear of French intervention has checked this. Germans can see no future for their industries if France takes independent action.

Holders of marks, however, are dumping them elsewhere than on the Bourse. There is a rush to let new building contracts and retail stores are being cleaned out by eager customers.

Antiquarians especially are doing a land-office business in curios and paintings. Their stocks, already depleted, they are bringing in fresh goods from Paris and Brussels. This anxiety of the people to get rid of their marks in exchange for something tangible only forces the paper currency ever lower.

Germany sees in the London conference the end of the entente and fears separate action by France as a result. Most Germans are convinced that the British alone have been protecting them from drastic action. They now fear Premier Lloyd George will be able no longer to hold the French back. Even the Reparation Commission, it is felt here, will soon become a moribund body.

Woman Arrested at Jail Talking to Husband.

Mrs. Marie Kelly, 51 years old, of 2535 Montgomery street, was arrested at the City Jail at 4 p. m. yesterday after guards had called the police following the finding of four lemonade straws filled with morphine at the cage where Mrs. Kelly was talking to her husband, Walter, a prisoner in the jail.

Guard William Glynn told the police he saw the straws drop along side Kelly, and as Kelly reached for them Glynn reached first and obtained the straws. The guard reported the straws apparently had passed through the screen to Kelly while he was talking with his wife.

The Right to Cut Trees

Shall We, by Yielding to Our Own Desires, Deprive Others Who May Follow Us of Possible Enjoyment?

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB.
(Copyright, 1922.)
A BOUT four years ago I built a little house in the heart of the woods. The particular joy of that house were the trees around it. They were tall, wonderful trees, many years old.
And when they were building the house every effort was made to preserve these trees, and I insisted that not a twig be cut down unless it really had to be done in the course of building.
Shortly afterward a friend of mine wanted the house and I sold it to him and built myself another quite near. I came by the little house one day and to my utter astonishment found that five of the most beautiful trees had been cut down by this man who had bought the house.
And when I asked him why, he said:
"I do not like so many of the trees around the house. I wanted more of an open space."
I was heartick over it because I thought of the many years it had taken for those trees to grow, and how many people would have enjoyed them.
And now the man is dead. Another family is living in the house and they constantly deplore that there are not enough trees.
I can't help wishing that there was a law against people cutting down trees. Because a man owns a piece of property it is presumed he may do anything he pleases with it.
But somehow I cannot help feel that the trees do not entirely belong to him. Somewhere in the years past human endeavor went into the making of that tree—human endeavor that cannot be estimated in money—human endeavor that cannot be incorporated in a deed or lease.
The person who planted that tree certainly could not have hoped or tried to live to see it in its full height. Therefore he planted the tree because, first, it was right for him to plant it, and second, that somebody would enjoy it in the years to come.

Man wants to perpetuate himself and he does it in many, many ways. Man starts the building of many things knowing that he cannot live to enjoy the full fruits of his labors, but he builds anyway, and he plants anyway.
And he does it because that instinct of reproducing for posterity is innate and he must follow that instinct.
Therefore it seems to me to violate that sacred obligation that goes from one generation to another is nothing short of criminal. While one may have the legal right to cut down a tree, why not stop to think? While you may not like it, who knows but, like the man who bought my house, you too may die any day and some one else will buy the place and be much happier because of the trees?
Not so long ago I read a story about a young man who hated his grandfather, as they had always quarreled. That grandfather died and left his immense timber land which made this young man rich.
And then the young man reflected that if his grandfather had not cut this timber he could not possibly have wanted to reap any reward for planting and that it was done for the purpose of preserving the timber for this young man in turn.
Instead of having it all cut and making a small fortune, this man cut only portions of it, so as not to devastate it, and kept replanting all the time for another generation.
It is well to think about these things before you start uprooting something that has taken years to grow or develop. Leastwise, if you do destroy, put something in its place for those who will follow. Such an act will make you feel that you are playing your part in the scheme of civilization.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Lesson in Fox Craft

By Thornton W. Burgess.

A little Fox should always plan to learn from others all he can.

—Mrs. Reddy

THE four young Foxes, lying with their mother on the big rock on the top of the hill in the Old Pasture, watched Bower the Hound disappear up the old road at the foot of the hill, just where their father had disappeared a few moments before. They saw how Bower kept his nose to the ground and ran exactly in the footsteps of Reddy Fox.
Mother Fox explained this to them. "You know," said she, "how when you are hunting down on the Green Meadows you sometimes find the smell of Meadow Mouse on the ground, and by following it find the Meadow Mouse. That is because, when the Meadow Mouse runs along, his feet leave a little scent. It does not last long, but it is there for a few minutes. Foxes do the same thing, only they leave more scent and it lasts a great deal longer. It sometimes lasts for hours. Bower the Hound has a wonderful nose and he can follow that scent even when it is a long time since it was left by a Fox. Somewhere he found the scent of your father and has been following it ever since just as he is now doing."
"Why doesn't father come home and be safe in our house under ground?" demanded one of the young Foxes.
"Because that would be the very worst thing he could do," replied Mrs. Reddy. "Then Bower would know where our home is and we would have to move. We wouldn't be safe there a minute. The last thing a wise Fox will do is to show an enemy where his home is. He will try everything else first."
"What will he try?" spoke up another young Fox.
"He will try to fool the dog by making a break in his trail," replied Mrs. Reddy. "Water will not hold scent. Never forget that! If you can run a short distance in water your scent will stop right at the edge of the water. Then, unless the dog is smart enough to find out where you leave the water, you will have nothing more to worry about from him."
"Then why doesn't father do that?" cried a young Fox. "I should have thought he would have done it right away. I would."
"Probably he has done it," replied Mrs. Reddy. "I don't doubt he has been over to the Laughing Brook and waded along in it for a long distance. But Bower the Hound is smart and knows this trick. If your father tried it you may be sure that Bower simply ran up and down on both banks of the Laughing Brook with his nose to the ground until he found where your father came out of the water. That trick might work with a young dog, but it won't work with Bower the Hound. Another trick is to run back along your own trail and then make a long jump to one side. That often will work, but not with Bower the Hound. He has learned that trick."

"Are there any other tricks?" piped up the smallest of the young Foxes.
"Lots of them," replied Mrs. Reddy. "It is a very good trick to learn from Bower the Hound. He has learned that trick."
"Are there any other tricks?" piped up the smallest of the young Foxes.
"Are there any other tricks?" piped up the smallest of the young Foxes.

"Q"

By Katherine Newlin Burt

Author of "The Branding Iron," "The Red Lady," "Hidden Creek," and "Snow Blind."
(Copyright, 1922.)

CHAPTER III CHIVALRY.

TRUE to her promise, Heloise sent her sartorial information, and Q, in search of fashion, betook himself after his chaste introduction to Sir Sydney, to New York and walked, as unsuspecting as possible, into his man. First he was duly robbed by Heloise's recommended tailor, barber, and haberdasher; then, self-conscious and elated, secretly grinning at his own splendor, he strode forth into the quick-stepping Fifth avenue crowd. He walked with a cowboy's rhythmic step, and, as the man inside the clothes radiated originality, he attracted more attention than he guessed. Q liked New York. It stirred and stimulated him. Shop windows, women, motors, towering cliffs of stone, the canyons that sent in their streams of trucks and taxicabs and hurrying travelers to the great rivers of traffic—every one of these aspects hurried his blood. A man who loiters and looks is a man who courts adventure. Q's temperament was naturally a lightning conductor. From the revolving glass door of a large store there stepped out a slim and tall lady in furs, a sumptuous lady, white faced and yellow haired if the two waved specimens above her ears were to be trusted; as she trotted past Q just glancing at him with monkey-brown eyes, he saw a smartly dressed youth slide a hand into the loop of her shopping bag and so cleverly relieve her of it that she did not so much as feel its absence. The youth, however, was smitten by prompt justice—a bolt from the blue. He slid several yards along the pavement, and Q, hardly breathing more rapidly, relieved him of his booty and returned it to its owner.
There was a quick assembling of an appreciative crowd, the thief was put into the hands of the law, and Q, glowing with unexpected conspicuousness, gave his odd name to the authorities, who made much of his oddity, as did the crowd, and, turning to receive his thanks from the furred lady, found that she had gone. This hurt his feelings. But it ought to have warned him past any danger of ensuing folly. What happened next was so completely his own fault that it could hardly be called a happening; emphatically New York was not to blame.

Q lunched at Delmonico's because, even in the remotest West, that restaurant, in the mind of cowboy and ranchman, still was the place that can be imagined of metropolitan fashion and gastronomic delight. He placed himself on a chair that faced the entrance door, as though he were waiting for a notable companion, and there he studied the rites of restaurant procedure until, feeling mastery, he rose, checked what should be checked, tipped who should be tipped, and bought himself a small table next to the furred lady, who was seated there. He studied first the menu, consulting gravely with his waiter, then, less concernedly, his surroundings. At the nearest table, with her back to him, sat the sumptuous lady with furs and blond hair. She was lunching with a man, better dressed even than Q and less conscious of it. He seemed, in fact, to be conscious of very little in his own personality and to care not at all what impression he might be making on the world at large. He did not look like a man who probes any deeper than a mirror surface into his own consciousness. He was, however, interested, in some fashion, in the sumptuous lady. Q had no business to listen to the conversation at this table, and, having listened, he had less reason to resent it. No one was complaining of his own somewhat unusual manipulation of forks and spoons nor of his filial attitude toward the waiter. Nevertheless, Q listened. He felt that Fate must have meant something by his mischievous trick of coincidence.

The man was talking. His glabrous, edgeless voice flowed over the woman and Q began to feel that it would cling to her. Q had heard plenty of vile conversation, he had heard filthy epithets such as this speaker would probably be incapable of imagining, but he had never heard a man, sane, sober, decently raised, so deliberately insult a delicate, so deliberately chosen and arranged. Her face had reddened lips, her hair was probably doctored, but she was a gentlewoman, or what in democratic country passes for one; a married woman, for her left hand resting on the table bore a plain band smothered in a bodyguard of jewels. She listened to the man and gave no sign of anger, only that Q saw her moisten her painted lips.

When he had seen this little betraying action more than twice, and when, under a crescendo of sarcasm, she flinched, Q found himself being unwillingly dragged out of his seat. God knows, he didn't want to make a scene, God knows he hated a row as any peaceful cowboy hates it. God knows it was all none of his business and the West hates a busybody, but God knows, too, that no man with real blood in his body could sit still and suffer a woman to be so shamefully entreated. Besides, he had already rescued her purse; wasn't her pride of more importance to her?

Whipped with discomfort, Q presented himself before the large-bodied, sleek-headed disturber of his peace. "I'm right sorry to butt in," he said, "but I can't let a lady be spoken to this way in my hearing. And as the man clattered suddenly to his feet, Q struck.

They were forcibly torn apart a few seconds later by a mob of white-lipped waiters. Q, having satisfied honor, was ready to defend his action and to explain himself—he had opened his mouth to do so when all virtue was taken out of him by the object of his chivalry.

She stood, no whiter than before, her lips as red, a queer, half-amused, half-disgusted smile in her monkey-brown eyes.
"He simply for no reason in the world attacked my husband," she said quite clearly and rather loud. "I think he must be out of his mind."

Q wilted. His defense died. He was, it would seem, about to be placed under arrest. A policeman had been summoned. It was an intensely uncomfortable situation and the eyes of diverted, disgusted and delighted lunchers glittered upon him unbearably.

Q's eyes turned from face to face, not beseechingly, but with a puzzled sort of desperation. He wanted pretty badly just then to see some of the boys. There was Shorty, for instance—Shorty would make quick work of that head waiter. He was reminded of a certain incident at the bar of Stoney. That had been a tight hole, if you like. He struggled for the philosophy of past experience. Well, he'd spent more than one night in the pen for riotous skylarking. It wouldn't be so bad when he was out of Delmonico's.

Seeking Shorty, or a reminder of him, he saw that a face had emerged from the crowd, a face with some sort of different and definite intention toward him. It belonged to a slim, quick-moving young man of assured bearing. He came to the head waiter and touched his arm. "I know this gentleman"—it was the voice of a man who takes quick control of an emergency—"and I will make myself responsible for him. I saw what happened. I was sitting near both tables. It was a misunderstanding—or rather a misapprehension—for a second his red eyes gleamed at me. I thought he was being insulted. It was, I may say, a natural misapprehension. He won't give you any more trouble. I can answer for that."

Q, white now and breathing rather fast, looked into the eyes of the man. They smiled, a shy, witty, restless sort of smile, which the lips repeated, bearing out their information. The rescuer, it would be imagined, was clever, nervous, voluble, and repressed. He had now a fine color in a somewhat lined face which, Q thought, but for the momentary excitement would have been pale. The rescuer's fingers had laid on Q's arm, still gripped by a panting waiter, were sensitive, nervous, skilful fingers, the whole body was finely and tightly strung with intermittent firmness as though its owner relaxed and then renewed an effort. His thick and curly crop of red hair burned defiantly like a protest of boyishness against the driven and controlled quality of the man. All this was clever, nervous, voluble, and repressed. He had now a fine color in a somewhat lined face which, Q thought, but for the momentary excitement would have been pale. The rescuer's fingers had laid on Q's arm, still gripped by a panting waiter, were sensitive, nervous, skilful fingers, the whole body was finely and tightly strung with intermittent firmness as though its owner relaxed and then renewed an effort.

Having smiled, the stranger went on with his defense. "His name is Cartwright, friend of mine from the West. Let him off, won't you, Hartman? It's always best not to stir up anything. Honestly, he'll give you no more trouble. He's not used to New York. The lady, naturally, does not want to prosecute. It might be awkward for her, when you think—" "Naturally, she won't prosecute," her husband responded gruffly, for her. She was now smiling, her eyes Left—Beaded Georgette certainly holds its own, and this informal little dinner gown is of the softest rose pink with pearl beads.

Second—An interesting frock of cherry colored Georgette, embroidered and beaded in shades varying from pink to deep cherry.

Third—The black gown always claims its right to recognition and crepe is the leading material, of course the skirt must be of uneven length though, and the bodice plain, and this model is most attractive.

were contemplating Q thoughtfully, appreciative of his good looks.

Two minutes later, Q found himself out of range of that terrible circle of unsympathetic eyes, out on the pavement in a sunlight that seemed to have more of humanity, more of sympathy. He straightened slowly and drew in a profound breath.

"Here's your taxi," said his companion. "Jump in, Cartwright, and—here he lowered his voice to a violent whisper—"go to wherever you belong and, for God's sake, don't try rescuing ladies. You're a fool, aren't you?"

"I sure feel like one," admitted Q reluctantly.
"Ladies don't need rescue, they don't want it, they don't like it. If they let themselves be manhandled by tongue or fist you can jolly well believe that it's for some good purpose of their own. Have you got that?"

Q said, "Yes, sir," smiled, and fixed his amazing eyes upon his admonisher. He was conscious of a warm desire for confidence. The man was certainly no older than he, but there was a sharp finish to him that Q recognized as the work of a far more chiseling experience, something that the rough, weather-furrowed granite of his own personality would never acquire. He wanted, with a certain bitterness, to justify himself, to explain something of his dilemma. The taxi began to whir away the minutes. His friend was probably impatient to return to an interrupted meal.

"There's a girl," said Q defensively, "that needs night-herding till they're eighty. Look at Grandma Sam—her carry's on. My grandma! Some day I'll have to tell you about that. And Ma Shippen's daughter, kind of a storm center she was; there's a bl-cut-shooter where I'm stayin' now that reminds me of her—Loretta Shippen. Hadn't it been for her ropin' her up and standin' over her with a gun until her ma came back, she'd have went off with Dismal—and she was a good gal too! Gets a despit kind of critters, right along until they die. Likely, that lady in there, if she'd been rescued soon enough, would have gentled real nice. I reckon it's come too late. When they once get to be strays—that's sure the truth—you can't do nothin' with them. And that's where I made my mistake. I won't keep you, stranger."

It was not until the taxicab was halfway to the station that Q realized miserably that he had never thanked his friend, had not even learned his name. He had said—with reluctant glances, glancing back at a hovering clerk, "Good-bye, Cartwright, I'll see you later. I want to hear about Grandma Sam." And, waving a hand, had gone back smiling into the restaurant, his fiery head extinguished like a torch. Q felt diminished and abashed, as much by his neglect of a golden opportunity as by his misplaced chivalry. He had failed in gratitude and he had failed to put his brand on this new friend. And, he admitted, he was very homesick for Shorty on this new range.

After-Dinner Tricks

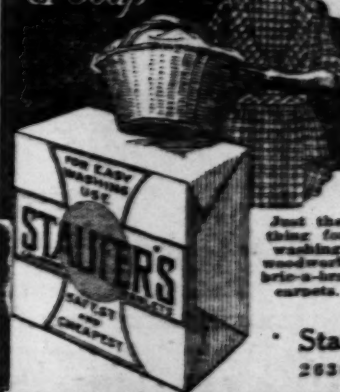

No. 204—Ring Taken From String.

Thread a ring on a double loop of string and place the loops over a spectator's forefingers. The trick is to remove the ring without taking the loop from the forefingers.

To do the trick, gather up a loop from one of the strings (Fig. 1), and place it over the opposite forefinger of the spectator (Fig. 2) and below the loop originally there. Then remove the original loop. The ring will come quite free of the string, which still remains looped on the fingers. If the movements are done rapidly they will not be detected. By reversing the process, the ring can again be threaded on the string.

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

How to Solve Some Travel-in-Comfort Problems.

WE can all take points from the experienced week-end. Her time, as a rule, is limited, and her salvation lies in being always ready to go and go quickly. Most women have a never-ending list of last needs when they decide to go away for even a week-end, let alone a longer trip, and it is time to reform. If you are planning a trip, select a suitable bag or suitcase, then make the fittings, and pack the bag in such a way that it can be grabbed at an instant's notice and not a thing need be added except a fresh nightie and a kimono.

There are sure to be spare moments when we will love to have pick-up work while we wait for the butcher, baker or vegetable man, for a cake to bake or a pie to brown, and picking up our sewing in this way for 15 or 20 minutes at a time will work wonders.

Suitcase sets are usually of linen, for linen sets launder so well. First, there is the little slipper bag. Suppose we choose linen in the natural color and embroider or applique a little pink wild roses on it, then face the top with pink satin and draw the top with pink cords.

The toilet-case is made a little longer than the brush and comb, which are to fit in it. The lining of pink satin has pockets stitched to fit brush, comb, toothbrush-holder and talcum box. Other pockets may be added if needed. Then the side pieces turn over the pockets and the case may be tied flat or rolled.

The nightie-case is just a large linen envelope in shape and is fastened with a button and loop. The pin roll is a strip of linen 12 inches long, lined with flannel and bound with ribbon, and it has ribbon ties on one pointed end. Pins of different sorts are arranged in rows, then the case is rolled up. When needed it may be unrolled and used, then hung up by its ties near the dressing table.

The looking-glass should have a case of linen made to fit it with a flannel as a protection to the mirror, which usually travels in the bottom of the bag or case. The soap and perfume case has a lining of rubber cloth or oil silk, which keeps the contents from injuring anything else in the bag. There is a pocket for the soap, one for a tube of cold cream, and one or more for bottles of perfume. As this is only for traveling, plain, flat bottles with tight corks should be selected instead of the bottles of fancy shapes.

The powder-case is made by covering a round of pasteboard with linen, then gathering the linen for the top around the edge. Cover another round with fine chamamois and gather on to this the chamamois for the top, drawing it with a chamamois string. Now fasten the chamamois bag inside the linen bag, tacking the bottom to the linen-covered bottom. This makes a perfect protection for powder and puff, and the linen outside keeps the chamamois clean. The bag is five inches deep when finished, and the bottom round is three inches in diameter.

The articles described are excellent for short journeys, but for a longer trip a silk Pullman apron should be substituted for the linen.

toilet-case. This can be made at home at much less cost than to buy it ready made. Take a piece of black satin 20 inches by 18 inches wide for the outside, then line it with heavy linen with the needed pockets all stitched in place before putting the pieces together. Run a casing along the top for the band, which runs around the waist and snaps in place. Put regular ties on the roll to fasten when the apron is rolled up. Any one who has known the convenience of the apron for one trip will never be without one. To have things within convenient reach is a comfort instead of having them on the floor or into the bowl as the train swings along.

A hat bag is very convenient in traveling, and folds up in a small space. It is best to make this bag of soft gray or tan taffeta silk. In it a little stitched hat may be folded flat, and when the journey is started the little silk hat may be donned and the other hat slipped into the bag and hung up out of the dust. The silk hat is light and keeps dust from the hair. There is a neat collapsible traveling hat box, but it takes up a little too much room on the short trip.

LAMB HASH

LAMB hash with fried cucumbers is a nice dish. To three cups cold minced lamb add one tablespoon of chopped onion, one cup of mashed potatoes, one tablespoon of tomato catsup, four tablespoons of milk, season with pepper, salt and dry mustard. Place in a baking pan and brown in the oven. Serve with a poached egg on top and fried cucumbers around.

For the fried cucumbers cut cucumbers like French fried potatoes, remove the seeds and blanch in salt water. Drain the pieces of cucumber, roll in flour, dip in egg, roll in cracker crumbs and fry light brown in deep, hot fat.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

Why Philotis, a Roman Servant Girl, Is Honored Today.

PHILOTIS was a servant girl who was born in Rome of poor parents about 361 B. C. To her is credited a service to her city which made her beloved by every Roman and the idol of the servants of her country.

After Rome was besieged by the Gauls, about 381 B. C., the Fidenates marched against the city. Rome was not expecting war, and was caught unprepared, having just recovered from a long siege. The Fidenates, seeing that the Roman army was incapable of meeting their attack, decided to ask a big price for peace—the women and daughters of the city.

What could be done? The men of Rome called a meeting and sadly decided there was nothing which could be done. They would have to grant the request of the Fidenates until they could muster an army and regain their loved ones. If they did not consent, the death of every man, woman and child of Rome was a certainty.

Philotis saw the folly of this idea and the hopelessness of the women ever seeing their homes again if the men of Rome yielded to the demand of the enemy.

Begging entrance to the Senate one day, Philotis pleaded with the officials to try a plan which she believed would save their wives and daughters. Because she was only a servant girl they would not listen to her at first, but were finally persuaded by her sincerity to try her plan.

Disguised in the clothes of one of the matrons of Rome, Philotis, with a lighted torch in her hand, marched at night with the servant girls of the city—all dressed as Roman society women—out of the gates and into the camp of the enemy.

Soon the men were drunk with wine and feasting, and Philotis signalled the men of Rome with a torch to attack. The Fidenates had fallen into a drunken stupor. They were unable to fight, and were conquered by the Romans.

Later the Senate, to reward Philotis and her servant-girl friends for their fidelity, permitted them to wear the dress of the matrons of Rome, a privilege which before had never been granted.

THE REAL HAPPINESS

By Wanda Barton

YOUR love and your labor save you, my boy.

What kind of girl are you looking for?

What kind of job are you looking for?

These are the two key factors in the growing of a big career. If a girl is a mere flirt, if she is careless how much she can make the spend on her; if she is a sort of parasite at home; if she is indifferently about her reputation, inclined to let young men take liberties with her; then, I say, you also are inclined to become a cheap one and to let a bedraggled career.

Your possible usefulness to society, your possible achievements as a valuable business man and an affair, will soon drop to the point in case you allow yourself to fall into the company of weak men. If you become a party to the immorality of a young girl or an, or if you are out sowing seeds of wild oats in any such manner, it is time to say good-bye to plan of business success about which you have been dreaming.

Try to select as your social companion a good, serious-minded, and then be sure that you are of her. While she should be afraid to break loose now and go to that happier work, which once seemed possible.

There is no big work for you, my boy, except it be a job which fills your dreams with joy and enthusiasm in its performance. Never mind as to the low wages at the beginning. If you are in love with the place, the increase of salary and the promotion are sure to follow as the day the night.

How simple and easy it is, after all, to live an honest, successful life. To be in love with a good girl, to be in love with a good job, to deal patiently and thoughtfully with both of these, to keep your personal life clean and free as possible from overmastering habits, like the drinking of alcoholics and the inhaling of tobacco; to keep learning a little day by day, to find a regular place and manner of divine worship—this is the key to happiness.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

Reforms

FOLKS keep arising here and there who say reform's their mission; they tell me what to eat and wear, they show me how to part my hair and change my disposition. For forty-two years I've ambled on contented in my errors, but now those peaceful days are gone and I must hear from break of dawn how men like me are terrible.

Reformers take the books I read, my thrilling tales they borrow, then call them fearful mental feed and say such works will surely breed a future full of sorrow. Yes, tales about the woolly West, all full of blood and thunder, in which I happily invest they say are worse than all the rest, they'd burn them all as plunder. Reformers' eyes with tears are wet when they survey the flap-jack; it's awful how they rave and fret about her socks and cigarette and how they long to slap her. Reformers take the bathing girl who frolics in the ocean out where the waters dance and swirl; she seems as lovely as a pearl according to my notion. But they insist she's full of guile, their arguments are heated while they devise a modest style of bathing suits, and claim her smile must surely be deleted. Reformers lurk on every hand, I fear lest I be chidden; so many things are contraband in this my loved and native land, I keep my pipe well hidden.

Dentists say USE BOTH!

One cleanses for white teeth

The other for pure, clean crevices, healthier gums, sweeter breath

THAT ugly, yellowish film on teeth which makes the smile self-conscious—you need not have that.

Sanitol Tooth Paste is the scientific film remover. The glycerine and superfine gritless dental chalk in Sanitol work swiftly, thoroughly. First the glycerine, a strong solvent, softens the film. It reveals the natural whiteness of your teeth.

Film you can see—but more treacherous enemies lurk in crevices between teeth.

Food particles lodge there, ferment, start decay. And you can't get a toothbrush in to help—the bristles are too stubby to penetrate. But Sanitol Liquid Antiseptic floods in everywhere and flushes out crevices, purifying them, stopping decay.

That's why dentists say, "Use both"—Sanitol Tooth Paste to restore tooth surfaces to a gleaming white; Sanitol Liquid Antiseptic to keep crevices between teeth pure and healthy, besides caring for tender tissues, and toning up and sweetening the entire mouth and breath.

More than renewed tooth beauty will entice you into the Sanitol habit. That cool, clean, exhilarating Sanitol taste is a surprise and delight to everyone. Try them!
